DOCTORS DENOUNCE STEINER MANAGEMENT IN CAUSTIC ATTACK ON 'PRIVILEGED CLASS'

100,000 Jam City for Football and Conventions

BUSINESS BOOMS, SALES INCREASE UP TO 20 PER CENT

CHAIRS IN LOBBIES ALSO DEMANDED

Persons Mill in and Out of Stores as Atlanta Celebrates Armistice.

By FRANK DRAKE.

People and dollars rolled like a river into Atlanta yesterday as one of the biggest crowds of the year literally jammed to overflowing the city's hotels to attend the big Tech-Alabama football game and six conventions here this week end.

The Convention and Visitors' Bureau estimated there were more than 100,000 persons here from out of the city.

Hotels were even selling chairs in the lobbies to "sleepers" for 25 and 50 cents as early as yesterday morning. All the cots owned by the big hotels had been taken out and put up in rooms to increase the space for "bedding down" the visitors.

Hotel Uses Cots.

One hotel reported it had placed as many as eight cots in each private dining room.

The crowd overflowed to fill up all the small hotels and many of the tourist homes in the residential sections of the city.

Prosperity took a sudden upward spurt at the influx of out-of-towners. Merchants reported business was roaring.

One leading department store official declared sales yesterday jumped 15 to 20 per cent above normal, while another declared that although he had expected an increase in business, the amount it increased was a complete surprise.

Sales Increase.

Still another executive said that business had been good all the week but that yesterday's sales were pushing above his expectations. One added that his store is now running far ahead of business of a corresponding period last year.

All day, crowds milled in and out of the stores in the downtown section and the town took on a gala air, marked, of course, by the celebration of Armistice Day with its morning parade.

Flags rippled in the breeze before nearly every establishment and all the public buildings were decorated.

In progress or opening Monday are:

Georgia State Nurses' Association, 400 visitors.

Southern Conference on Audio-Visual Education, 1,000.

Georgia Federation of Post Office Clerks, 40.

Georgia Society of Certified Accountants, 50.

National Fertilizer Association, 400 visitors.

Lobbyists Invade Atlanta—Hotels Like It

With hotel rooms scarcer than hen's teenth, Atlanta hostelries yesterday hung out "CRO"—chair room only—signs and proceeded to sell space in lobby chairs for football fans to spend the night in. Here's one Alabama supporter (he said his name was J. Smith, from "out-of-town"), snoozing peacefully but maybe no so restfully on a couple of chairs in one lobby. These makeshift beds were selling for from 25 to 50 cents.

FOOTBALL MIGHTY WILL CLASH TODAY

'Black Saturday' Forecast; Alabama and Tech Collide at Grant Field.

Football giants of the nation today face what many observers forecast as a "black Saturday."

In every section leaders oppose dangerous foes with prospects that the undefeated-untied ranks, which now number seven teams, will be further battered.

Notre Dame's fighting Irish face a gruelling assignment against Minnesota; Dartmouth's perfect record is in grave danger against Cornell; Duke, yet to be scored on, must stop a bewildering passing game to get by Syracuse; Ray Morrison, Vanderbilt's coach, yesterday predicted his Commodores would smash Tennessee out of the select circle; Texas Christian was favored, but by no means was regarded as a sure thing against victory-hungry Texas; Oklahoma feared Missouri and Santa Clara is concerned over its struggle Sunday with St. Mary's.

Atlanta will see a colorful and sectionally important struggle when Alabama and Georgia Tech meet at Grant field at 2 o'clock. The Yellow Jackets are in their worst condition of the year and are given only an outside chance against the powerful Crimson Tide. The game is expected to attract 26,000.

Georgia is an underdog against Tulane at New Orleans. Coach Joel Hunt thinks Georgia will be a threat all the way.

Plainclothes policemen will again patrol streets around Grant field this afternoon, on the look out for "watch your car, mister" racketeers, who don't watch.

Chief M. A. Hornsby assigned 12 men to cover the streets and lots around the field. Though the racket of watching cars was virtually broken up last week, the chief said the men will forestall any effort to revive it.

Royal Family Is Reunited By Paris Visit

Invitation for Christmas Visit to London Believed Extended Windsors.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A friendly, informal meeting with the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester today brought the Duke of Windsor back into the British royal family circle with the social acceptance of his American wife.

The Gloucesters spent Armistice Day with the exiled former King Edward VIII and the wife for whom he abdicated.

When the two couples left their hotel for an afternoon drive they were cheered by a sidewalk crowd.

The meeting of Edward and his younger brother was expected in British circles to be followed by successive receptions of the Windsors by other members of the royal family, eventually permitting them to return to England.

WORLD OBSERVES DAY OF ARMISTICE WITH FOREBODING

Roosevelt Leads America in Commemoration as Legion Chief Calls for Universal Service Law.

BRITISH MONARCH BOWS AT CENOTAPH

Paris Uneasy; Germany Doesn't Celebrate, Just Comments on Versailles.

By The Associated Press.

American and European peoples—their governments arming anxiously and some suspicious of each other—yesterday marked with prayer or proud neglect the 20th anniversary of the Armistice in the war they fought to end wars.

Shadows of force and hatred still lay over the old world, undispelled by the newer "Armistice of Munich," and clouded the horizon of the Americas.

On a hillside splashed by bright autumn sunlight, in Arlington cemetery near Washington, President Roosevelt laid a wreath of white chrysanthemums at the marble tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The national commander of the American Legion, Stephen F. Chadwick, made an Armistice Day call for enactment of a universal service law in the United States.

General John J. Pershing, who commanded that now anonymous doughboy entombed in Arlington and his thousands of buddies, had said the world situation demands "immediate and vigorous action" lest the United States encounter "the recent experience of England and France."

In London, King George VI bowed in the rare November sunshine at the foot of the Cenotaph in Whitehall and placed a wreath of tribute to Britain's own World War dead.

Dynamite blasted the two-minute silence in Belfast, Northern Ireland. The explosion caused no injuries.

Italy celebrated the 69th birthday of King Vittorio Emanuele, having observed a week ago the anniversary of her own Armistice with Austria-Hungary.

Retired General Asks Political Neophyte Be Given Dual Nomination.

In 1940 coalition of "the cream of all parties" was advocated yesterday by Major General George Van Horn Moseley, retired commander of the fourth corps area, in an Armistice Day address before the National Christian convention in Cincinnati, Ohio.

General Moseley, whose retirement statement on national affairs was branded as "flagrantly disloyal" by the Washington administration, also cracked down on a possible third term for President Roosevelt and minimized the need for strengthened national defense.

"The time has arrived for a coalition government, made up of the cream of all parties," he said. "The emergency is so great that it should be possible to find an outstanding American who has never been a candidate for public office and nominate him in both the Republican and the Democratic conventions."

He quoted Jefferson as saying "That I should lay down my charge at a proper period is as much a duty as to have borne it faithfully."

Students at State Colleges Want Holiday, Better Food

G. S. C. W. Girls March in Protest Against Lack of Thanksgiving Vacation; Boys at Southwestern (Americus) Stage Short-Lived Hunger Strike.

Boys and girls in two Georgia educational institutions added to the administrative burdens of the state board of regents yesterday. At Milledgeville, it was the young ladies of Georgia State College for Women who did a bit of protest marching in attempts to get a holiday at Thanksgiving. At Americus, it was the young men of Georgia Southwestern College who staged a short-lived hunger strike at noon and remained one meal away from the dining hall in protest against the food.

All but 20 students looked at the turnips, corn bread and water, and departed, chanting: "We want meat!"

The walkout ended last night, however, when the boys, somewhat hungrier than usual, filed into the dining hall at the supper hour—to eat fried chicken, southern style.

From the college point of view, Dr. Peyton Jacob, president of the institution, said it was "providing the best food available at $12 a month," and that the students "just missed a good meal."

He conferred over the telephone with members of the board of regents in Atlanta and was instructed to "check conditions and remedy them if it is necessary."

Although hunger returned them to the plates and saucers it was reported the student body, of which James Andrews is president, planned to appoint a committee to appeal to Dr. Jacob about "better menus."

The Milledgeville effort for a Thanksgiving vacation began Thursday when a small group of students called upon Miss Iva Chandler, assistant dean of women, and explained that other schools in the University System of Georgia had time off for Thanksgiving—why not G. S. C. W.?

Miss Chandler is said to have replied, "Go out and play, girls."

Instead of taking this advice, some 500 women students marched on the home of President Guy Wells. He was out of town.

The march continued to the home of Dean Hoy Taylor, who reminded the group of an agreement to trade their Thanksgiving holiday for longer time off at a later date.

Yesterday, a new delegation was chosen to call upon President Wells when he returns to the campus.

NAZI CONSULATES WARNED OF BOMBS

German Aide at Boston Is Told Building Will Be Blasted This Morning.

BOSTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Kurt Bohme, acting German consul at Boston, today notified Boston police he had received a telephoned threat the consulate would be blown up at 10:45 a. m. tomorrow. Several special officers immediately were detailed to investigate.

Bohme told police the threats were made in two telephone calls to his home in suburban Belmont. The first call was received by the consul at 1 a. m. and the second by his wife at 10 a. m.

Both times, Bohme told police, it was a man's voice, which said:

"If you value your life keep away from your office tomorrow, as it will be bombed."

The first and second messages were similar, one adding that the bombing would take place at 10:45 a. m.

24-HOUR GUARD ORDERED IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Police placed a 24-hour guard over the home of German Consul General Hans Borchers today after the consulate received several telephoned threats that its offices would be bombed.

Detectives from the bomb squad made a search of the consulate's offices on the twenty-second floor of a downtown building and reported they found no explosives.

Police said they believed the anonymous calls came from persons aroused over the outburst against Jews in Germany.

Although the consulate made a report to police, a spokesman there said the staff was not alarmed over the threats because during recent months there have been many anonymour warnings and protests.

The consulate was closed officially today in observance of Armistice Day and Borches was not available for comment.

BOARD CONSULTS REUBEN ARNOLD, THREATENS SUIT

THREAT IS AIMED AT 100-BED ANNEX

Official of Estate Attributes Selfish Motives to Protesting Physicians.

Preparing to launch a court battle "if necessary" to prevent erection of a proposed 100-bed $276,000 addition to the Albert Steiner Cancer Clinic, trustees of the Fulton County Medical Society late yesterday emerged from a conference with Reuben Arnold, attorney, to issue a caustic indictment of the operation of the clinic and charges that a "privileged class has been set up at the expense of the taxpayer."

Reaffirming its previously declared action, that no additional bed space is needed, the statement, signed by nine members, pointed out that Atlanta expends about three dollars for every one that the Steiner funds provide; contended that if beds of the institution were utilized for the care of cancer patients alone, each patient would have 23.4 days a year—far in excess of the average stay for cancer patients, and requested that the names of indigent sufferers be furnished the medical society on the promise they will be given immediate attention.

A committee of doctors prepared the statement with Arnold's advice. It was signed by Major F. Fowler, chairman; C. C. Aven, president; M. T. Harrison, secretary-treasurer; B. Russell Burke, vice president; Edgar H. Greene, president-elect; H. C. Sauls, former president; Grady E. Clay, J. T. Floyd and Stephen T. Brown.

"Figures Misleading."

Pointing to a report of the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals for 1937, the statement contends that 468 led patients were treated for cancer at Steiner during that year, and brands the statement that 3,000 cases were admitted to Steiner in 1937 as misleading. As a further bolster for their contentions, the statement asserted that based on the death rate from the disease, there should be only 1,101 sufferers from cancer in Atlanta and Fulton county.

"During a 12-month period just

'Uncle Heinie' Henika Observes His 83d Birthday With a Wish.

By LUKE GREENE.

Two of Georgia Tech's most mellow and refulgent personalities—each just "one of the boys"—had birthday anniversaries yesterday.

They were Dr. M. L. Brittain, president, a mere 72, and John Henry (Uncle Heinie) Henika, instructor in the mechanical engineering department, who tops his chief by 11 years.

Both took occasion to reveal how they felt about things—Doctor Brittain about modern youth and Uncle Heinie about man's proper age-length.

"Young people today are more of a credit to their country than were the folks of 20 or 30 years ago," Dr. Brittain declared.

As Dr. Brittain spoke, outside his window a gaily-decorated "Ramblin' Wreck" filled with singing youngsters rattled past. The educator grinned and returned to his conversation.

Dr. Brittain drew a comparison between the machine and "Frankenstein," and added "the youngsters are doing pretty well to manage."

DR. BRITTAIN AT 72.

"Youth of today has many advantages over the previous generation," he continued. "There are radios, automobiles and all of the other modern inventions. The machine age has outgrown our young people but they'll catch up with it."

Uncle Heinie, after being honored Thursday evening at a birthday dinner given by the mechanical engineering faculty, at which Professor R. S. King was toastmaster, declared, "I'm still as spry as many men of 40 years, and I still want to reach the age of 120, which I believe is man's rightful age instead of the traditional three-score-and-ten."

Tech President Is Pleased With the Young Generation.

Questioned about a recent statement of Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes in which he was quoted as advising California students to disregard the advice of their elders, Dr. Brittain said:

"Although Mr. Ickes is a close friend of mine I must disagree with that viewpoint. Despite the independence of modern young people they can still learn from their elders."

Dr. Brittain has been president of Georgia Tech for more than 16 years. He began his educational career as principal of the old Crew Street school in 1888. Before becoming president of Georgia Tech he served as county school superintendent and also as state superintendent.

Marriner Eccles Talks 'Off the Record'

Reserve Board Chief Addresses Southern Bankers Who Later Putter Around Millions in Cash

By JACK SPALDING III.

Bankers' bankers, metropolitan bankers and country bankers from over the southeast gathered in Atlanta yesterday to hear Marriner Eccles, chairman of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System, speak in the afternoon, and to stand casually over hundreds of millions of dollars in the Federal Reserve vaults at a reception last night.

The occasion was a conference, which will extend through noon today, between the directors of the Sixth District Federal Reserve Bank, its branches in Jacksonville, New Orleans, Birmingham and Nashville, and four members of the governing board of the Federal Reserve System. Here from Washington in addition to Eccles are Ronald Ransom, former Atlantan, and vice chairman of the national board; Chester Davis and M. S. Szymczak, both governors of the system. Present also were national banking figures, who paused in Atlanta en route to the convention of the American Bankers' Association, opening Monday in Houston, Texas.

Eccles' lengthy speech, delivered off the record, followed a business session of the board at the Federal Reserve Bank yesterday morning, and climaxed a luncheon given at the Capital City Club by the Atlanta Clearing House Association.

Young Is Toastmaster.

Seated at the speakers' table in addition to bankers, were Mayor Hartsfield, who welcomed the financiers to Atlanta, and State Treasurer George B. Hamilton, who represented Governor Rivers. H. Lane Young, vice president and executive manager of the Citizens & Southern National Bank, acted as toastmaster.

Chester Davis, one of the guests of honor, spoke Thursday night at a forum sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

The cautious Eccles had little to say to reporters. He parried each question with remarks about the weather and that he hoped to be able to pay another visit to Atlanta soon. Amiable and facetious, he refused to be quoted on the present and probable future state of the nation, or on last Tuesday's elections.

After luncheon the bank governors and directors again withdrew to the Federal Reserve Bank for another business meeting.

Marriner S. Eccles, front row, left, chairman of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System, spoke off the record yesterday at a luncheon in honor of visiting governors, given by the Atlanta Clearing House Association. On Eccles' left sits M. S. Szymczack, member of the governing board, and Ronald Ransom, former Atlantan, and the board's vice chairman. Standing, from left to right, are Frank Neely, chairman of the board of the Sixth District Federal Reserve Bank; Chester C. Davis, former AAA administrator and member of the board of governors of the system, and H. Lane Young, prominent Atlanta banker.

Between 8 and 10 o'clock last night, Frank H. Neely, chairman and the board of directors of the Federal Reserve Bank here, entertained at a reception in the bank building for visiting directors and more than 1,500 business, financial and industrial leaders of the southeast.

The new building, completely remodeled after several months' work, was elaborately decorated for the occasion and all departments of the bank were thrown open for inspection. Included in the improvements are a modern cafeteria, a library and a lounge for the employes.

All offices have been soundproofed, air-conditioned and equipped with indirect lighting. The exterior of the building has been cleaned, bars have been removed from the windows and armed guards who formerly met visitors have been replaced by a woman reception clerk.

Director's Room Mural.

The decoration is in the form of a map of the sixth federal reserve district, including the states of Georgia and Florida, and sections of Alabama, Tennessee, Louisiana and Mississippi. While treated in a decorative manner, the map is complete in every detail, and shows cities, rivers and railroads. Above it is an allegorical resume of the founding and settling of Georgia and its progress from the trade pact between General Oglethorpe and the Indians to the sailing from Savannah of the first trans-Atlantic steamship.

Wives of the visiting directors were entertained at a luncheon given at the Piedmont Driving Club yesterday, by Mrs. Oscar Newton, wife of the president of the Atlanta Reserve Bank.

The governors and directors will meet again at a business session this morning, and will be the guests of Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, at the Tech-Alabama football game this afternoon.

Members of the bank directorate, who were hosts last night, in addition to Neely and Newton are: R. G. Clay, president of the Fulton National Bank, Atlanta; W. D. Cook, executive vice president, First National Bank, Meridian; Ernest T. George, New Orleans; Fitzgerald Hall, Nashville; Dr. Rufus C. Harris, New Orleans; J. A. McCrary, Atlanta; J. F. Porter, Columbia, and George J. White, president of the First National Bank, Mount Dora, Fla., and other officials of the bank.

John J. 'Bathhouse' Coughlin Dies, Ending Legendary Political Career

One of Last of Political Bosses of Checker-Vested School, Who Never Bothered to Campaign for Long-Held Office, Succumbs in 78th Year.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—(AP)—John J. "Bathhouse" Coughlin, who served 46 years in the city council without the inconvenience of campaigns, was unseated today by death.

The career of this colorful Caliph—ended by pneumonia in his seventy-eighth year—seemed almost incredible.

So did the philosophical and flamboyant "Big Jawn," one of the last political bosses of the checker-vested school.

He started as a rubber in a steam room patronized by tipplers of a two-fisted drinking era. He became alderman and ruler of one of the nation's wealthiest wards, "uncrowned king" of his loop bailiwick, owner of a string of race horses, poet laureate of the city call, arbiter of fashions.

Florid Phoenix.

Coughlin rose, like a florid Phoenix, from the ashes of the great Chicago fire. He saved his money, opened a Turkish bath. He met Michael "Hinky-Dink" Kenna, keeper of a saloon, during the boisterous reconstruction period. Both were free-handed alms givers. They made many friends. They formed a Damon and Pythias political team within the Democratic ranks. They assumed control of the first ward. They had retained it ever since.

"The Bath" took his place in the aldermanic body in 1892. On election eves the Coughlin-Kenna faithful paraded through the ward with banners lettered: "Live and let live." Coughlin was returned to the council automatically. Squat structures gave way to skyscrapers. The Loop changed. But never the people's choice.

Sartorial Rainbow.

"Bathhouse John" was ever a conspicuous figure in the council chamber. Now he wore a cutaway coat of gray, a green waist coat with orange stripes. Again he sported a silver-braided suit with a cerise tie. When he donned his straw hat, haberdashers proclaimed an open season on such headgear.

Frequently he courted the muse. During prohibition, he penned this opus:

"Dear Paree! O Gay Paree!
"Why should I cross the sea to thee?
"Here by the lake, where winds blow soft,
"My throat I slake both bold and oft."

They're planning an impressive funeral for the alderman Saturday. The mayor and members of the city council will march with an escort of police and firemen. A brass band will sound the dirge.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly commented:

"He had a great heart."

ALABAMANS DEFEAT GAS TAX FOR ROADS

Constitutional Amendment To Limit Use of Funds Was Sought.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Defeat of the proposed constitutional amendment limiting use of gasoline and automobile taxes to highway purposes was indicated today as official counts were made in most of Alabama's 67 counties.

With returns tabulated from 1,969 boxes of 2,204 in the state, the count stood:

For the amendment 50,634, against 52,992.

SUIT THREATENED IN CLINIC DISPUTE

passed, 1,205 patients made application for aid to the cancer control division of the state department of public health from all Georgia," the statement pointed out. "Of this number 945 had cancer."

Trustee Answers.

A selfish motive was attributed to the doctors by Joseph H. Hirsch, a trustee of the Steiner estate, in replying last night to the various assertions.

"I happen to be a manufacturer—and I know that in my line of business we do not encourage competition," he declared. While Atlanta has some of the finest and most charitable doctors to be found anywhere, I am afraid that there are some selfish ones among them.

"The equipment at Steiner clinic is of the best and latest sort, and I believe that some of the doctors are beginning to feel the effect of the clinic's work. We do not want to injure the doctors. In fact, we are trying to build up Atlanta as a medical center. I feel they ought to cooperate with us."

Mr. Hirsch is president of the Empire Printing & Box Company, and it was his published reply Thursday to the doctors' assertions of the previous Thursday, concerning the clinic, which inspired Friday's statement.

Expressing regret that it had "to enter into a newspaper controversy over medical matters," the board said:

"But when a lay person, who either does not know what he is talking about or is willfully trying to misrepresent facts, goes to newspapers we feel that we have got to inform the public accurately of existing conditions."

Among the recommendations made in the statement were:

1. Restriction of the use of the clinic to cancer patients only.

2. Maximum service to the poor of Atlanta by operating as a diagnostic, treatment and research unit.

3. Elimination of provisions enabling "members of the 'official family of Atlanta' and their relatives" to get free treatment at Steiner. The report contended that "operations in appendix and tonsil cases, for goiter and many other procedures for relief of non-cancerous conditions have been done."

"This practice of admitting officials of the city of Atlanta and members of the board of trustees of Steiner clinic and their families sets up a privileged class at the expense of the taxpayers," the statement declared.

Need Tubercular Beds.

"The need for cancer beds in Fulton county can not compare with the need for tubercular beds since the infectious nature of tuberculosis makes its care essentially a hospital problem."

Pointing to the "rapidly developing social service department in connection with Grady hospital," the doctors said "this facility will be solely to relieve the hospital of nursing problems and chronics, which have no right in an acute hospital."

"This will give more room for acute conditions such as cancer bed patients which really require hospitalization.

Attention Promised.

"To prove our sincerity (in contending that an addition is not needed at Steiner) we will greatly appreciate being furnished the names and addresses of indigent cancer sufferers who are denied adequate attention due to lack of beds or other facilities," the statement said. "As physicians and taxpayers, we will promise to see to it that they get immediate attention.

"We think the city should retain all of its hospital facilities under one board and should retain all its properties connected with hospitals; the various units being co-ordinated in the interest of economy of service to the poor.

"We feel that when the time comes to expand our facilities for taking care of the indigent sick of Fulton county, the county and city should borrow the money, if necessary, and retain control of its expenditures for the benefit of all classes of sufferers unable to pay."

"As a matter of fact, the major part of the surgery from the cancer ward (Steiner) could be done in the well-established operating rooms of Grady hospital or other institutions, thus conserving facilities and space at Steiner for the essential and fundamental functions of a cancer clinic.

"To dismantle and store an X-ray treatment machine to make room for two beds is amazingly ridiculous. Deep X-ray is one of the three effective weapons we have against cancer. This machine in operation could have been of vast service to a large number of cancer sufferers who could have been accommodated in beds at home or elsewhere.

"We deplore the controversy that has arisen in connection with the operation of Steiner ward and wish to call the public's attention to the fact that members of Fulton County Medical Society have served on the staffs of various clinics in Fulton county for many years without any dissension or ill feeling whatever. A partial list of these clinics is as follows: The Atlanta Tuberculosis Association, the Atlanta Cancer Clinic of the Georgia Baptist hospital, the Winship Memorial Clinic of Emory University, the Morris Hirsch Clinic, the Presbyterian Clinic, the Good Samaritan Clinic and others."

WOUND IS FATAL TO MAJOR MILLIS

Scion of Atlanta Pioneers To Be Returned Here for Burial.

Major Ralph Millis, 44, United States army instructor at the Teaneck armory, was killed last night by a shot through the right temple at Englewood, N. J.

Police Captain Jack Abrams said the shot was self-inflicted, and added that Millis was found in the basement of his home at 7:30 o'clock, a few minutes after he returned from the armory.

Abrams said a .38-caliber automatic revolver was found by the major's side.

The elder son of Colonel John Millis, retired, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mrs. Mary Raoul Millis, of Atlanta, Major Millis was the maternal grandson of the late Captain and Mrs. William G. Raoul, prominent Atlanta pioneers.

His younger brother, Walter Millis, author of "The Road to War" and "The Martial Spirit," is an editorial executive of the New York Herald-Tribune.

Major Millis was born here, but was reared in various parts of the country, as his father was transferred intermittently. In 1916, he was graduated with honors from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a year later volunteered for service in the army.

After serving in France, he returned to this country and joined the engineers' corps. He had been stationed in Washington, D. C., Canal Zone, Savannah, and lately at Wilmington, N. C., where for three years he was district engineer.

He was transferred to New Jersey several weeks ago. Relatives in Atlanta said last night he had been ill for more than two weeks.

Also surviving are his wife, the former Miss Elizabeth M. Myers, of Atlanta; two daughters, Miss Catherine and Miss Elizabeth Millis, both of Teaneck, N. J., and a sister, Mrs. Norman Dicken, of New York city.

The body will be brought to Atlanta for burial.

LOWELL, Mass., Nov. 11.—(UP)—An alleged hitrun driver, whose automobile carried the dead body of his victim for more than a quarter-mile, was rescued from mob violence by police tonight.

James M. Shanley, 35, of Lowell, arrested on charges of drunkenness, operating under the influence of liquor, manslaughter, leaving the scene of an accident and driving so as to endanger, had to be beaten into submission by officers, police said.

RESIGNATION REFUSED FOR ECUADOR'S CABINET

QUITO Ecuador, Nov. 11.—(UP) Provisional President Manuel Maria Borrero tonight refused to accept the resignation of the cabinet and thereby temporarily averted a grave political crisis.

Earlier the President himself had threatened to resign, following criticism of his policy, but he changed his mind this afternoon after members of the cabinet had tendered their resignations, asserting he would continue in office until the political situation is "tranquillized."

JERUSALEM BOMB SHATTERS WINDOWS

The store is owned by New York and Chicago interests.

British troops fought a band of Arabs at Beit Fukir, near Nablus, earlier in the day and 20 of the band were reported killed.

The customary Armistice Day ceremonies were cancelled because of the persistent disorder, but relatives and friends of the 12,000 British soldiers who died in the conquest of Palestine went to cemeteries to decorate the graves.

KRYL'S ORCHESTRA IS WELL RECEIVED

Critic Declares That Symphonic Calibre Is Quite Outstanding.

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.

Bohumir Kryl and his symphony orchestra of about 35 pieces were presented to an audience that filled Glenn Memorial auditorium to capacity last night. The concert was under the sponsorship of the Student Lecture Association of Emory University, of which Dr. Ross H. McLean is faculty advisor.

Kryl has an unique organization in that every player is a young musician, and the orchestra includes several girls in its personnel. They are a group of skilled performers, however, and their symphonic caliber is quite outstanding. Their playing possesses a verve and an enthusiasm that young players naturally have, yet their interpretations were seasoned and finished.

Kryl himself presents a quaint picture, with long grey hair almost shoulder-length in the true old-fashioned "musician's style." He directed the program entirely from memory, and without a baton, using his hands in expressive gestures that drew from his group of performers interpretations of authority and genuine artistry.

The orchestra did its best playing in the Brahms' "Hungarian Dance, No. 6," and in "Capriccio Espagnol," by Rimsky-Korsakov. The closing number, "Prelude to the Meistersinger," Wagner, was given a stirring rendition. The audience was most appreciative and expressed their keen enjoyment of the program in prolonged applause, and encores were given, including "Flight of the Bumble-Bee," Rimsky-Korsakov, and "Country Gardens," Grainger.

There were four soloists with the orchestra, all young and attractive, and each revealing a fine talent and real artistry. Each received cordial appreciation from the audience. They were Burtis Preston, baritone; Barbara Le Brun, harpist; Florian Zabach, violinist, and Dorothy Dickerson, coloratura soprano.

Knows the Answers And He'll Need 'Em

BURBANK, Cal., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Detective Lieutenant John J. Millinet, of the Los Angeles police force, had been told often enough in making arrests:

"You can't do this to me."

So it was easy for him to recite the words last night when he was arrested on charges of speeding, failing to signal for a turn, straddling the center lane and driving without a registration certificate.

Neither did he coin a new phrase when he said in refusing to sign the ticket:

"I'll go to jail first."

UNIVERSITY SELECTS RHODES CANDIDATES

Four Named To Compete in Atlanta December 15.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Morris Abram, Fitzgerald; Robert McCuen, Savannah; Al Morgan, Atlanta, and Floyd Newton, Madison, will be the University of Georgia's candidate for 1938 Rhodes scholarship awards.

W. D. Hooper, chairman of the university's Rhodes committee, announced today these four outstanding students would compete in Atlanta December 15, against nominees from other Georgia colleges.

The two winners in this elimination will enter the district, eight state examinations December 17, and four of these 16 candidates will be awarded the scholarships which entitle the holder to two years of study at Oxford University in England.

FRANCE TO ADMIT TROOPS FROM SPAIN

Soldiers Must Have Funds To Return Home.

PERPIGNAN, France, Nov. 11. (AP)—The French government agreed today to admit foreign fighters discharged from government Spain's international brigades on transit visas provided they had means for returning to their own countries. About 600 Americans were included.

Previously, France had turned back others than Frenchmen at the frontier on grounds that they were without funds. Among them were 54 Americans in a trainload of 300 wounded soldiers which was stopped at the border.

Negotiations also were being conducted with other countries to open their doors to demobilized anti-Fascist Germans and Italians. Mexico, particularly, was understood to have been approached.

ATLANTANS TO HEAR 2 YOUNG CHINESE

Mass Meeting Will Be Held Wednesday Night at First Methodist.

A mass meeting to which are invited all who are interested in youth will be held next Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock at the First Methodist church.

The meeting will be addressed by two outstanding young people who are in this country representing the youth of China, Miss Pearl Teh-wei Liu and Dr. Pau-yu Yin. They are on a tour of good-will through the south.

Both have been under fire in their native land and have interesting stories of youth's experience, attitude and hope in the face of overwhelmingly adverse conditions.

The meeting is promoted by youth groups of college and churches of Atlanta.

Miss Liu was born in 1912 in Fuchow, the capital of Fukieng province. Taking her B. A. degree at Yenching University in Peiping in 1935, she is a teacher of English in the Municipal Girls' school in Hangkow, and in 1937 was the president of the Professional Women's Club of the Hangkow Y. W. C. A., coming this past summer as a representative of the Chinese Christian Federation to the World Youth Congress, which was held in August.

Dr. Yin was born in Shanghai in 1908, took his B. A. at the University of Shanghai in 1930 and his Ph. D. in political science at Johns Hopkins University in 1935. He is a member of the faculty of the National Central University in Nanking, and during the last few months has been active in the anti-aggression campaign in China.

Strive To Rescue 100 From Death

Georgia Judges, Sheriffs and Police Chiefs Will Meet Here Wednesday on Unusual Objective.

Judges, sheriffs, police chiefs and other officers yesterday were invited to a state-wide rally designed to "save 100 lives." The rally, which will be held here next Wednesday, is under the sponsorship of the Department of Public Safety and the highway patrol. It will be held at patrol headquarters at the Confederate Soldiers' Home.

Public Safety Commissioner Phil Brewster, who is in charge of the program, said the rally would be climaxed with a speech by Governor Rivers Wednesday night.

Commissioner Brewster said he had extended invitations to all sheriffs, judges who try traffic cases and to police chiefs of cities of more than 8,000 population.

Cut Deaths in Half.

"During November and December of last year there were a total of 200 traffic fatalities in Georgia," Commissioner Brewster said. "We know that accidents are accidents and that it is impossible to wipe out all fatalities, so we are going to try to cut the number of deaths in half."

The commissioner pointed out that for the first 10 months of this year there were 644 traffic fatalities in the state, a reduction of about 100 for the same period last year.

"We have shown the result of untiring vigilance," the commissioner said. "But as we are going through the last two months we feel that if we double that vigilence we can reduce the traffic toll still further. The records show that the months of November and December are the two worst months on record as far as fatal accidents are concerned."

Speed Is Chief Cause.

Speed continues to be the cause of more than 50 per cent of the fatal accidents, Commissioner Brewster said.

The commissioner added that at next Wednesday's rally the Department of Public Safety and the highway patrol hopes to bring about enthusiastic co-operation between state and county officers and the courts to hold the accident toll to a minimum for the balance of the year.

"We are getting splendid co-operation from county authorities and the courts," the commissioner said. "We only hope that we will be able to get even more enthusiastic co-operation after our rally Wednesday."

It's Last Day of 'Freedom' for Girls at Agnes Scott

Agnes Scott seniors had their last day of "freedom" yesterday before assuming their official status in the college and celebrated the event by turning back the calendar a few years. 'COALITION' POWER DOUBTED BY F.D.R.

House Leader Rayburn Joins President in Deprecating Opposition.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Both President Roosevelt and Representative Rayburn, of Texas, the Democratic house leader, expressed the opinion today that Tuesday's election had given the administration no reason to worry about "coalition opposition" to its legislative program.

However, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States suggested the election results would lead to closer study and greater opposition in congress to "ill-advised and hastily drawn" bills affecting business.

Since Republicans made heavy inroads Tuesday into the Democratic majority in congress, speculation had arisen in the capital that Republicans and conservative Democrats would team up in next session in attempts to block New Deal legislative proposals.

Asked at his press conference this morning whether he believed the outcome of the election offered a threat to a continuation of "liberal government," the President said he certainly did not.

Reporters wanted to know what predictions he had sealed in an envelope last week at his home in Hyde Park, N. Y.

Admitting that he was pretty good as a forecaster, the President said he had predicted results in New York just about the way they came out. He added that he had figured the Democrats would lose seven senators and 65 house members. Actually they lost eight senate and 81 house seats.

Late, after Rayburn had conferred with the chief executive, the question about coalition prospects was put to the Texan.

"I think," he asserted, "these Democrats we have in there this time are going to be Democrats and will go along with the program."

Los Angeles Jurist Tells Woman To Appear in More Proper Dress.

By LARSTON FARRAR.

Are "slacks" slack?

Controversy over this seemingly unemotional—but actually pretty dynamic—question burst like a firecracker in Atlanta last night after word reached town, via news dispatches, that a Los Angeles municipal court judge wouldn't let a woman witness testify because she was wearing 'em.

He told her to go home and change and come back Monday. But the lady—Miss Helen Hulick by name—said she'd stick by her guns, her slacks and the constitution and come back Monday, all right, and see it out, Judge Arthur Guerin or no Judge Arthur Guerin.

Jurists Here Dissent.

Atlanta women were rather inclined to agree with the judge—though some didn't—and Atlanta jurists, in some instances, gave dissenting opinions from the views of their California brother.

Nobody, however, seemed to take into consideration that the news dispatches described the embattled patriot lady of the far west as "attractive" and her appearance in the slacks as "trim."

"Since the object of the court is to discover truth, whether witnesses are wearing pants or not, seems to me to be immaterial," asseverated Judge Augustus M. Roan, of the DeKalb division of Atlanta municipal court.

"While I cannot criticize the action of another judge, since I do not know all the circumstances, I can say that I would pay little attention to unusual dress in my court. Some courts, however, have built up a tradition that must be respected."

Woman Backs Judge.

On the opposite side of the fence was Miss Margaret Preacher, graduate of Washington Seminary. She thinks the judge was "entirely right."

"After all," she declared. "The beach is the place for slacks . . . not the courtroom. I wouldn't do what the lady in L. A. did, and I don't think it is the proper thing to do."

However, Miss Helen Aycock, pretty Atlantan, said there was "nothing wrong with the young woman going to court in slacks, if she wanted to. . . . I wouldn't, but I don't think it's either important or improper."

Miss Martha DeGolian's viewpoint was rather liberal.

"People dress strangely in Los Angeles . . . and in all big cities," she avverred. "I wouldn't condemn Miss Hulick for going to court in slacks, if she wanted to. It's a matter of taste, albeit very poor taste on her part."

Cone Adamant.

Recorder John L. Cone, declaring "fewer clothes seem to mean more style these days," said he was not surprised to hear that the matter of breeches in court had come up. However, he said he would handle the matter in the same manner as the Los Angeles judge.

"But Atlanta girls are too nice to come to my court in slacks," he added, insonciantly. "I would simply advise the girls to go home and change clothes, if one did."

Judge E. Marvin Underwood, of the United States district court, northern Georgia district, commented: "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. The issue has never been created in my court."

Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton superior court, was even more brief about the case.

"I don't think it is proper for a judge to make a statement about a case in another court," he declared.

Against the young woman was Miss Ann Pappenheimer, who declared: "Ladies should act like ladies . . . and I don't think it's proper or ladylike to go to court in slacks. It shows no respect for the judge."

Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, of Fulton superior court, said he "never contemplates meeting this problem face to face." If he does, he will go on the theory that the court deserves some dignity.

5-DAY-OLD BATTLE.

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), Nov. 11.—(AP) The five-day-old battle of the Segre river raged into the afternoon of World War Armistice Day with Spanish government and Insurgent forces still reported locked in struggle south of Lerida.

PERSHING, BATISTA, ROOSEVELT MEET

Cuban 'Strong Man' and President Confer on New World Problems.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, General John J. Pershing and Colonel Fulgencio Batista—three men with widely varying background and experience—met briefly at the White House this afternoon and exchanged greetings.

General Pershing arrived at the executive mansion to pay his respects to the President just as the Cuban army leader was concluding a half-hour chat with Mr. Roosevelt on Cuba's social and economic problems.

Pershing was saying goodbye in advance of his departure Sunday for San Antonio, Texas, where he served as a fledgling officer a half-century ago. Later he will go to Tucson, Ariz., to spend the winter. Pershing was a major during the Spanish-American War, which liberated Cuba, before Batista was born.

Reversing the usual role of a White House visit, President Roosevelt turned questioner today and asked the Cuban visitor about conditions and improvements in Cuba. Batista rose to power in Cuba a few months after the President entered the White House.

Batista said later the President showed a keen knowledge of slum clearance, education and other social legislation in the island republic.

The President and Batista, the power behind the Cuban president, then turned to a discussion of Cuban-American and new world problems, talking generally about mutual protection, aid, and development.

TWO-PRICE GROUP TURNS TO COTTON

Considers Quality Mattresses for Poor.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace's special "two-price" committee explored the possibility today of reducing the nation's huge cotton surplus by disposing of some of it at cheap rates in a mattress manufacturing program.

Chairman Harry L. Brown told representatives of the mattress industry and trade in an Armistice Day conference that some of the government's 9,000,000 bales of loan cotton might be used for this purpose.

The idea would be, he said, to get a good quality cotton mattress for sale at a cheap price to low-income families.

TINY PRICK KILLS SURGEON.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—(UP)—Nine days ago Dr. Elizabeth O'Hearn, Shenandoah, Pa., surgeon who has successfully performed many major operations, pricked her left index finger with the point of a needle. She applied a dab of antiseptic and disregarded the scratch. She died today, victim of a staphyloccic infection.

POLITICAL ARMIES MASSED IN CHILE

Rivals Mobilize on Heels of Leftist Coalition Victory at Polls.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Rival Chilean political factions were reported tonight to be raising armed forces to back the claims of their presidential candidates, with the apparently defeated Conservatives disputing the results of the election held October 25.

Unofficial returns indicated that Pedro Aguirre Cerda, backed by a coalition of radicals, Socialists and Communists, had defeated the Conservative government candidate, Finance Minister Gustavo Ross, by the narrow margin of 221,116 to 213,615.

It developed that the rightists hoped the court of claims would reverse the verdict of the unofficial returns. The court has to announce its decision.

Students Don Kid Clothes at Agnes Scott

Time turned backward in its flight at Agnes Scott yesterday as members of the senior class had their final "fling" as "kids" before officially assuming their proper positions in the college.

Pigtails, all-day suckers, big hair bows, games of ring-around-the-rosy and short skirts were in evidence on all parts of the campus. But some observers remarked that the skirts were really not much shorter than those worn by other classes.

Today, however, all will be different. Kid clothes will be discarded and at 11:35 o'clock this morning the seniors will don their senior robes and march in the procession which precedes the traditional investiture service.

The program, to be held in the gymnasium, will include the presentation of hoods by Miss Carrie Scandrett, dean of the college; a talk by Miss Charlotte Hunter, assistant dean; and a prayer by the Rev. D. W. Hollingsworth, D. D., of Florence, Ala. The procession will be led by Sara Christian, class mascot.

KING WILL CONFINE STAY TO CAPITAL

Royalty Expected To Travel Without Attendance of Ministers.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to the United States next spring is likely to be confined to a stay in Washington, it was said in usually reliable quarters today.

There was said to be little likelihood of their majesties going to New York and its World's Fair because the invitation they accepted, that of President Roosevelt, was a personal one to visit him in Washington.

(Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King, of Canada, announced in Ottawa that the British King and Queen would make their trip to Canada about the middle of May, landing at Quebec. On their departure, after a tour of Canada and an overland trip to Washington, they will sail from Halifax.)

The King and Queen are expected to travel without attendance by any British ministers since Canadian ministers will have the right to accompany the ruler as King of Canada. This disposed of London reports that British Prime Minister Chamberlain or Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax might be invited in the royal suite.

WARDEN IMPROVES.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 11. (AP)—Dr. C. C. Woods, deputy warden of the state penitentiary, showed a slight improvement today in his fight against gun wounds inflicted during a prison break by seven convicts yesterday.

MORE AIR KNOWLEDGE FOR CIVILIANS ASKED

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Edward J. Noble, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Society, called on modern Americans today to become as familiar with airplanes as their ancestors were with squirrel rifles.

Then, he said, the citizenry will be ready to "spring to arms" if foreign "despotism" threatens American democracy. He made his remarks in a speech prepared for the Aviators' post of the American Legion.

Taxbuyer Bites County in Spot Where It Hurts

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Maybe someone actually did bite a dog.

But it's also a rarity for plain John Citizen to try to take property away from the county because the county hadn't paid its own taxes on it.

Imagine the shock of the Hillsborough county commissioners when they found some fellow had the temerity to buy up the delinquent tax certificates on a county-owned piece of land and was getting ready to acquire a tax deed on it.

"There ought to be a law," said irate Commissioner B. B. Badger, in whose district the property is.

The board has two alternatives. Either it can put up the money for the taxes which were owing at the time the citizen foreclosed the property, or it can appeal to the good nature of the tax buyer and ask him to please take some other property besides that which belongs to the county.

GARMENT WORKERS BOLT LEWIS' CAMP

Powerful ILGWU, With 250,000 Members, Delivers Setback to CIO.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The CIO suffered a major setback today when the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union of 250,000 members bolted the parent organization it helped form and became an independent union.

The ILGWU executive board decided unanimously not to comply with the request of John L. Lewis, CIO chairman, that all CIO affiliates send delegates to a convention in Pittsburgh next week to form a permanent organization to rival the AFL.

The board, declaring that it wanted reconciliation between the CIO and AFL, said that until that was attained it would not enter either camp. It asserted that the CIO-AFL split was one of the major causes of "the setback suffered by the progressive and liberal forces" in last Tuesday's elections.

VETERAN GIVES THANKS FOR GIFT GIVEN IN '17

GENEVA, Ill., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Armistice Day brought a "thank you" today for a sweater Miss Delia C. Mungerson knitted for an American soldier 21 years ago.

She received a letter from Edward Grimley, of Providence, R. I., a veterans' hospital patient at Rutland Heights, Mass., who said he recently found her misplaced address and "I am writing this late letter to say I am thankful."

ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 12, 1938.

CAUSE AND EFFECT?

In the Book of Proverbs it is said "Where there is no vision, the people perish."

Two stories were told in the news columns during the week. One revealed how 7,700 persons in Fulton county, unemployable and penniless, may each receive only $2.29 per month from the county board of public welfare. Too, there is no money available to furnish fuel for heating the poor homes where these helpless neighbors exist.

The thought of some one, unfit for employment, having to sustain life on such a pittance shocks the imagination.

The second story was continued from day to day and is not yet ended. It is the story of the campaign to fill Atlanta's Community Chest for this year. The quota set represents the absolute minimum needs of the 32 agencies which depend upon the Chest for financial sustenance during the year. It is slowly mounting toward that total. But it is not yet full.

This year the response to the Chest appeal was better than in recent years. The subscriptions came in more promptly and there is strong hope the sum needed will be forthcoming.

For the past four or five years Atlanta has failed, year after year, to fill the Community Chest quota. Why, no one can tell, beyond the simple logic that Atlantans have not given of their means generously enough. Other cities have done better. Other cities of the south have filled larger quotas and made them overflow, even though their population figures are smaller than those of this community. No fault can be laid at the door of the Atlanta workers during those past years. No fault can be found with the publicity. The need has always been fully told, none can truthfully plead ignorance for lack of giving.

The agencies of the Community Chest are those which build character, which restore health to the diseased, which sustain happy family life, which make for better citizens, physically, mentally and spiritually.

The link between the two stories of the week is plain. Simplest logic tells that, had Atlanta supported the agencies of the Community Chest more generously in the past, there would not today be so many unemployables dependent upon the pitiful $2.29 monthly handout from the board of public welfare.

Elimination of poverty, of disease, of unemployment and all the other factors that make a board of public welfare necessary is, inevitably, a slow process. For it can only come through long years of education, of training, of regeneration and of sympathetic help, the very factors which the Chest agencies provide.

The response that Atlanta makes in this year of 1938 to the call of the Community Chest will be measured, in the books of time, by the extent of the need, in 1958, for the charity that must be given to the unfortunates, the sick, the helpless, the "unemployables" of that year to come.

WHEN WINTER COMES

Further reasons for increased vigilance on the part of automobile drivers are outlined by the National Safety Council as that body points out motor accidents increase as the day draws to a close and the year nears its end.

The council discloses that beginning in July and lasting well through the rest of the year, figures on traffic accidents rise. And yet, from September through December, gasoline consumption falls off. Which would indicate in a fairly conclusive manner that seasonal hazards enter the situation as a definite factor.

Many conditions are pointed to as being responsible for the accident increase, all of them additional arguments in favor of more careful driving. For instance, since darkness falls earlier as autumn progresses, rush hour crowds appear on the streets in dusk or dark, instead of daylight.

People return to town from summer vacations; business picks up and as a result delivery wagons make more trips. Week end football games are another factor in the accident upsurge, as thousands of fans take to the road. Many of them also take a drink or two or four. Snow and icy weather have their effect, although reports show that when really severe winter conditions prevail, drivers proceed more carefully. The matter of closed windows in cold weather also enters the picture. The council's researchers found that, with windows closed, engine noise deadens warning bells and whistles to a certain extent, that drivers do not always give the proper hand signals and defective exhaust systems sometimes accumulate poisonous carbon monoxide gas. Frosted windshields as an accident cause also are not to be overlooked.

When winter comes, it looks as if death is not far behind. But death, the safety council claims, is allergic to safe driving.

PARTY MUST CLEAN HOUSE

One aftermath of the recent national elections may be a house cleaning in the Democratic party in at least two states where the taint of corruption struck hard at the organization. Otherwise, the accumulated reaction will seriously affect party chances in the 1940 elections.

The Republican party today stands in the position of a strong opposition group, which is well, since this factor will have weight in forcing the Democratic rank and file into using a clean broom to brush out the elements within the party that have brought it to bad repute.

It was largely local and regional factors that cut into the Democratic majority, together with a general trend away from legislation which appears to be along untrod paths. This is a reaction to be expected. Today those Republicans who have turned from their party's old-guardism have regained an appeal to the voters by following in the paths of the Democratic reforms.

In Pennsylvania, however, the G. O. P. old guard was victorious purely and simply because scandal had been striking like lightning at the head of the Democratic factions within the state. The attempt of Governor Earle to throttle a grand jury investigation and replace it with a friendly legislative whitewashing smacked too much of an intent to avoid the consequences of dubious actions. It may be expected, now that the Republicans have taken over the machinery of state, that the investigation will be pursued in a manner that brooks no good for the national party. This is the result of complaisance on the part of the national party; a dangerous, uncalled-for avoidance of a police duty.

In Massachusetts, an intrenched machine offered a candidate besmirched with the dirt attaching to Boston machine rule. Former Mayor Curley represented in the minds of the unattached voters who hold the balance of power, a Tammany-like figure which contrasted strangely with the new liberals of the Republican slate. A similar condition existed to a lesser degree in Rhode Island.

Only by a thorough house cleaning within the next two years can the Democratic party hope to regain the confidence of the voters of these states. Honest rule, above all, should typify the party slate. Had this not been the case in New York, that pivotal state also would be lost to the party.

The other factors which entered into specific Democratic reversals are more complex, the heaviest being dissatisfaction with the farm program in the midwestern states. It is evident that a workable farm program is necessary if the Democrats are to regain power in the farm belt.

The labor problem contributed to the downfall of Frank Murphy in Michigan, despite the fact that his handling of the sit-down strikes prevented bloodshed by compromise of the letter of the law with the spirit of the law. The maneuvering of the Dies committee also had its effect, undoubtedly as its chairman desired. The Michigan sit-down strikes were the result of a labor organization that had not reached maturity, and it must be doubted that even John L. Lewis countenanced the tactics of the inexperienced leaders of the auto workers. The actions were regrettable, yet it is difficult to see where bloodshed, inevitable had compromise been rejected, would have gained government, management or labor one whit. Mr. Dies permitted hostile witnesses to smear Murphy with the much-abused brush of "Red" fellow-travelership. Perhaps Mr. Dies and his fellow-travelers will now stop seeing a Communist plot behind every bush and get back down to earth.

These are the things which confront the Democratic party in the next two years if the nation is to be kept on the forward path.

"The tumult and the shouting dies," sang Kipling—and the new theory is that "Dies" isn't a grammatical blunder, but could be a Texas congressman.

The German minority in a foreign part never knows at what hour the command will come from home, "On and after Monday next, you are dissatisfied."

Editorial of the Day

SOUTH AMERICA WANTS GOODS

(From the Savannah Morning News.)

Put South American trade on a sound basis. Conditions are right for such a move. This is the plea to United States industrialists and exporters by Warren Lee Pierson, president of the United States Export-Import Bank. Within ten weeks he toured all South American countries except Bolivia.

Mr. Pierson says United States exporters can win trade in competition with the subsidized exports from foreign countries, and that no subsidies are needed for our products. He makes four suggestions for a trade-winning program: Good quality, reasonable prices, adequate credit facilities, and a consistent foreign trade policy which is not merely a fair-weather one.

It would not be possible to find two continents more complementary, Mr. Pierson asserted. "We have much that they need and we need much that they have," he added. Never was there a time when there was such friendliness of South Americans toward the United States. Trade between this country and Latin America can give a needed stimulus to business. It could be the most practical way of promoting a solidarity which would keep out attempts of the totalitarian states to get a foothold in the new world. President Roosevelt in his address Wednesday night warned that the United States would protect the western hemisphere from interference from abroad.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

OUTSTANDING ELECTION RESULT WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The election returns have revived the Republican party from a long catalepsy. All the gains obviously necessary to bring the party back to life—new house seats, new governorships, new places in the senate—have been handsomely achieved. But the future of the Republican party remains extremely unsettled.

Had Herbert Lehman failed to nose out Thomas E. Dewey in New York, the Republican future would have been easily predictable. Then control of the party would have passed wholly into the hands of men like Dewey, Cabot Lodge and Lev Saltonstall in Massachusetts, Payne Ratner and Clyde Reed in Kansas, and the others who stand for a realistic liberal-conservative and shrewd political compromise. Almost inevitably, Dewey himself would have been the party candidate in 1940.

But, unhappily for those who think that the compromisers and realists are the Republican white hopes, the party's two most conspicuous successes were in Pennsylvania and Michigan. In these two great industrial states, over the violent opposition of labor and the whole New Deal front, the governorships were captured by Judge Arthur H. James and Frank D. Fitzgerald. It would be hard to deny the title of reactionary to either man. Both were openly backed by the die-hard element of big business. Both waged campaigns which had a strong anti-labor flavor. Both shouted the old Republican slogans about "regimentation," "spending" and "dictatorship," which men like Dewey and Saltonstall were so careful to play down.

EVEN ODDS While James undoubtedly owes his election to reaction against the disgusting brand of government offered by Pennsylvania Democrats, neither James nor Fitzgerald can be laughed off. Indeed, if it were not for certain drawbacks, both men would be in commanding positions with respect to 1940.

Fitzgerald's drawback is a depressing second-rateness, which even his supporters don't trouble to deny. James' drawback lies in the fact that his chief backer is Moses L. Annenberg. Annenberg is a vastly useful political angel, for he is one of the richest men in the United States. But, since most of his income derives from racing tip sheets and a pool room news service, Annenberg's support is a serious handicap for a presidential candidate. Annenberg and the others who financed James' campaign are already planning to put their man over. But, while he must be watched, he is a distinct long shot.

James and Fitzgerald are poor candidates, yet the Republican extremists have conserved their strength in the party. The command of two such state governments as Michigan's and Pennsylvania's will mean much in the 1940 convention. On the other hand, the Lodge-Saltonstall-Dewey type of Republican has made enough gains so that the odds now seem to be about even in the struggle for control of the Republican party.

"MODERATE" TRIUMPHS Although the successes of the "regimentation" shouters have surprised many, the gains of the moderates are probably the most striking Republican phenomenon of the election. New England, once a stronghold of the most unrelenting reaction, has been captured by the moderates almost in toto. Where, two years ago, Senator Lodge in Massachusetts and Governor Aiken in Vermont were the only New England Republicans of the moderate type, now not only Lev Saltonstall, but also Bill Vanderbilt in Rhode Island, and Baldwin who won the governorship, and Danaher, who won the senatorship in Connecticut must be added to the group. Much credit for this transformation of New England Republicanism must go to young Cabot Lodge, who first dramatized the possibilities of the new government.

Then the remarkable showing made by Tom Dewey is likely to protect Dewey's friends, National Committeeman Kenneth Simpson and the other moderate New Yorkers, from the onslaught of the extremist leaders upstate. With the election of Governor Ratner and Senator Reed, Kansas very definitely becomes a haven of the moderates. So does Minnesota, where youthful Harold Stassen is said to have much promise, while several of the other states selecting Republican governors have also preferred middle-of-the-roaders.

TAFT IN '40 If it were not that he is known to consider 1940 too early for him, Cabot Lodge might be the outstanding Republican presidential prospect. As it is, Bob Taft, who led the Republicans to victory in Ohio, seems to be the best bet. His principles are highly conservative. Yet he is honest, able and attractive. And his face is new. Thus he represents a natural compromise between the two wings of Republicanism.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

When the smoke
Comes up from the railroad,
I'll be crossing
The viaduct with you;
And the smut
On your dress will settle,
With that old
Cleaners' bill overdue.

I Thought This, Happily, Was Over.

Really, I thought it was one of the unregretted falsities of a bygone age. Something to ponder over in sociological history, together with the burning of witches, laws which prohibited a man from kissing his wife on Sunday and the erstwhile sin of riding on a streetcar on the Sabbath.

But I read in the public prints that the Atlanta board of education has reversed itself on that question of permitting use of school auditoriums or gymnasiums for school dances. And, so reading, a wave of discouragement over the stupidities of the human race overwhelms.

The news story attributed the action of the board of education to "pressure" brought by various groups, or organizations. So I suppose the blame for this antediluvian attitude must, basically, be laid at the door of these unnamed groups with so much influence. Only secondly at the door of the board, for their weakness in submitting to such absurdity.

They were, as said, unnamed. But I'd hate to be a member of any such a group, on a day that is bound to come in the future. That is, if such an individual possesses such a thing as a conscience.

For I know my conscience would hurt when I heard of some good school boys and girls dancing in the sort of resort where they shouldn't be. And I remembered that, but for me and my kind and the "pressure" we brought to bear on the board, those same boys and girls could well have been dancing, decently chaperoned, in proper surroundings, in their own school.

Makes Me See Red.

Please pardon the column this morning if it tends to be incoherent. For this is the kind of thing that makes me see red. So mad I'm inclined to sputter.

The truth of the matter is that persons who see anything evil in dancing are merely revealing the secret obscenities of their own minds. They are abnormalities in the body of society and are the real encouragers of prurient perplexities.

Every Sane Person Dances.

The truth of the thing is that every sane, decent, normal young person dances, except the few who are too shy or self-conscious. And it is good that they should. The dance is valuable in inculcating poise and grace in young bodies. It is a great contributor to the finer health and physique of the coming generations.

It is valuable, too, as carefree social enjoyment.

That is, the dance under proper auspices. Such as we could have had in the schools. I'm not talking of the dances in little roadhouses, where sometimes, I understand, freedom goes too far toward license.

The youngsters are going to dance and I'm glad of it. But I do wish we could hold the dances in proper surroundings. That would be the best way in the world to keep these clean youngsters of ours out of unhealthy atmospheres.

Maybe I Know 'Em.

It has just occurred to me as a possibility that I know some of these unnamed mossbacks who brought that "pressure" on the school board. I hope not. And, if I do know them, I truly hope they'll maintain their present anonymity, in so far as I am concerned.

Because it would be painful to discover that a man or a woman for whom you have had liking and respect, for whose ideas you have, in the past, felt sympathy, could be guilty of such a thing as this.

Really, I thought the world and my own community was improving in simple decency and in intelligence. This one thing has made me doubt that belief.

There must be a lot of people in Atlanta both stupid and evil-minded, if they are numerous enough to be able thus to force their cruel narrowness upon the board of education.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Wednesday, November 12, 1913:

"The largest crowd that ever attended an automobile show in Atlanta on any one night was present at the evening concerts of John Philip Sousa's band Tuesday evening at the Atlanta million-dollar automobile show."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Monday, November 12, 1888:

"The Gate City Guard, about thirty strong, left for Augusta yesterday at 2:45, and the Governor's Horse Guard went down last night at 11 o'clock. Both companies will take part in the military exercises at the exposition this week."

Source of the Nile.

Source of the River Nile was discovered in 1862. It was one of the world's main arteries for thousands of years before geographers knew the identity of its headwaters, one of the upper branches of the Kagera, which originates in the mountains of Tanganyika.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

May Be Helpful NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Has it ever occurred to any of us that our cultured friends across the sea may be doing us a helpful service in their robust denunciations of the United States as a land of gangsters?

Mussolini, of all people, started this and when, after a long time, he touched a nerve and made us twitch Hitler's press took up the charge. Now both call us a nation of gangsters. And American who, earlier in the game, took a mischievous pride in this reputation have now become ashamed, realizing that there is more than a grain of truth in what they say.

Apparently our gangs are not as bad now as they were during prohibition, but it would be foolish to say that they are extinct. The Department of Justice has done good work, heavily assisted by the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and Tom Dewey in New York has not only won spectacular victories over some of the most defiant low-lives of the underworld but, more important, has swung public sentiment angrily against organized crime, particularly in collaboration with local politics and government.

Pathetic Yet Hopeful It is rather pathetic, yet a hopeful sign, when ordinary citizens of Chicago, after generations of submission to politico - criminal combinations, speculate wistfully on the possibility that Chicago, too, may one day discover a Dewey.

The very name of Dewey suggests hope, and now that Mr. Dewey has received instructions to proceed with his work he probably will kindle in the people of many communities an aggressive purpose to smash the rackets which prey on them and punish criminals in politics.

I have not the text of Mr. Roosevelt's recent remarks about overemphasis on internal corruption, but, as I remember, he thought such talk could be overdone. Certainly it is bad publicity for the United States as a country, but if the talk leads to practical prosecution of grafters and hoodlums and results in a new concept of responsibility and honesty in politics, the country will be the winner. The Russians shoot grafters. That is a little severe, but we seldom even send them to jail. We have laughed off such crime, not realizing, as the Russians do, that a grafter who robs the children of their schooling or the people generally of money paid as taxes for public services is guilty of a worse crime than mere highway robbery. He strikes at the security and political stability of the country, and that is no laughing matter.

Sentiment Is Changing Possibly if those two bland, defiant thieves in public office who respectively stole millions from the state of Illinois and about a quarter of a million from the taxpayers of Cook county were to be tried a year hence, instead of having been tried a few years ago, they would be convicted. Sentiment is changing.

During prohibition we got a very bad press abroad. We deserved it. And Americans traveling in Europe, far from showing shame, boasted of the criminality of our gangs, particularly of the Chicago gangs which were tied in with the local government.

Now, from the dictator countries, it is being hammered home to us that we tolerated criminality as a routine nuisance and permitted the growth of a belief that the spoils of office included graft. With the worst intention in the world Mussolini and Hitler will have done this country a great favor if by their exaggerated and unmannerly remarks about a nominally friendly nation they shame the American people into a new attitude toward all crime and particularly graft.

That Mussolini's Fascism itself began as a racket, with neighborhood gangs extorting tribute from gamblers, prostitutes and respectable merchants, and that Hitler copied Mussolini need not be considered. Extortion by terrorism is historically identified with Sicily. Mussolini himself broke up the Sicilian gangs, and now his own racket disowns its low beginnings.

Doctors often use deadly poisons to cure disease, and if the ill-meant taunts of the Fascists and Nazis help to goad the Americans to a robust moral turn against graft and other crime the intention can be ignored.

Allah To Be Praised.

The meuzzin's call soon will be heard from the minaret of a Mohammedan mosque in Edmonton, Alta., as Islam's first place of worship in Canada is opened. The structure will have a dome like its counterparts in Arabia.

One concession to Canada's climate will be made. Removal of overshoes or rubbers will be sufficient for entering the mosque. In warmer regions the shoes are removed.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

THE CRUCIAL TEST Mr. T. Graeme Haldane, British engineer and member of one of England's best-known families, spoke yesterday in Atlanta. In addressing the Atlanta League of Women Voters he said:

"The crucial test likely to apply to all countries is their ability to deal with poverty, malnutrition and unemployment."

There can be no argument about his statement. National planning, brought into effect by the New Deal, vitally is necessary to the continued progress of this nation. The democracy of the world is nowhere so sick as in England, where the job has been fumbled more than in any other country.

There are people of a temper to admit nothing has succeeded; that the New Deal's planning has brought chaos alike to agriculture and industry. Unemployment has not been abolished; the spending program has carried the nation farther into debt; the farm policy of artificial scarcity has not worked and has been repudiated. The list runs long.

Despite those failures progress has been made. Even though there have been serious errors; even though graft and official corruption have marred some phases of the planning; despite waste and the creation of a horde of professional reliefers, progress was made.

Planning must go on. If mistakes have been made it means merely that new plans must be attempted. This country will never turn back regardless of the political affiliation of the man in the White House or the majority in congress.

It is amazing there should be any other thought in the minds of those who believe in a democracy. If the founders of the republic did not have their tongues in their cheeks when they wrote the fundamentals of the Constitution; if Lincoln was not joking when he spoke of a government "of, for and by the people," then there is no other course.

Democracy's job is to create a government which all the people feel is giving them opportunity to escape extreme poverty, malnutrition and unemployment. As long as there are millions of people not so cared for, then democracies must continue with planning; with creating an economic balance.

OUR BEST DEFENSE Our best defenses are our natural resources. The plan of an artificial scarcity has not worked. Therefore, it should be changed. A subsidy for domestically consumed crops, with the surplus going on the world market for what it will bring, has been indicated by the administration as the next plan.

There is no reason for scarcity in this country. Until, of course, there can be some plan whereby a balance is obtained between industrial and agrarian production, there can be no really workable plan. That probably was what the administration had in mind when it spoke of not interfering with business unless business interfered with recovery.

Perhaps that plan is wrong. If so, then it will be necessary to try another one. The important fact to remember is that the economic adjustments of the world demand planning. One has but to remember back to 1932 to know that without PWA, WPA, NYA, CCC and other organizations, we would have had serious trouble. Perhaps these setups were not the proper ones. The job, then, is to find the proper ones.

As long as there is malnutrition, extreme poverty and unemployment, democracy has a big job to do. It may as well be done with blueprints. If the architect bungled the first set, then let's draw up another set.

We have the resources no other nation owns. Finding a method of marshaling them to remove the big problems is the job.

INEFFICIENT DEMOCRACY Democracy, of course, is the most inefficient of governments. It must submit plans to the people and let the pros and cons be argued. All this requires time. We have lobbies, editorials, radio speeches, filibusters, and much debate.

A totalitarian leader says "do" and the job is done.

A totalitarian leader may order food restrictions, may abolish all organizations save those sworn to his service; may create labor camps for civilians who are unemployed; may abolish all labor unions; may order any act and have it instantly obeyed.

That is efficiency. The cost is too great. In America we have a modified form of wage and hour control, but it is not general in application, applying only to businesses engaged in interstate commerce. It was a proposition submitted to the representatives of the people.

It seems obvious we are going to have a growing amount of central control and yet have it through democratic means and retain the democratic principles.

The price of totalitarian efficiency is too much to pay. But, unless the democracies develop an efficiency of their own and employ their resources effectively, they will continue in danger.

Whether Republican or Democratic—there must be planning.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My dear Louise:

So they done my little gal wrong, did they? Well, I'm ready to do battle for you, right or wrong, and in public my story is that you're always right, but just between us, I'll lay odds that you asked for it.

The old law of balance is still in force, and the first clause is the one about cause and effect. Nine times in ten, the unpleasant thing that happens to us is the natural fruit of a seed we planted.

I saw in the paper today that our American public, which dearly loves its trees and resents their slaughter for profit, is about to witness the massacre of a multitude of monarchs.

A private company, which owns the largest remaining stand of age-old Sequoias, is preparing to turn them into lumber. What a piece of vandalism! Majestic old trees, that were saplings when Rome ruled the world, destroyed to make boards for little houses.

But wait for the explanation. Our foolish timber taxes make cutting necessary. If you hold timber long enough, the yearly taxes add up to more than the lumber is worth. This particular company, according to the newspaper story, is forced to cut the lordly redwoods because it can't pay the taxes any longer.

And "we the people," who hate to see the trees cut, are responsible for the tax laws that make the cutting necessary. We asked for it. (By the way, if you haven't done your good deed for the day, you might write Mr. Rockefeller and ask him to save these trees for posterity. Surely these wonderful works of God are as much worth saving as a cathedral in Europe.)

We have natural emotions, capacities and weaknesses, like love and hate and greed and envy, that seems to operate spontaneously, but almost everything we do was prompted by something that happened to us.

There would be no labor troubles and militant unions if employers long ago had established the practice of treating workers as well as possible.

There wouldn't be a wasteful campaign to undermine and wreck utilities if power companies had never watered stock or failed to give the best possible service at the lowest possible rate.

In fact, there wouldn't be class and race and national conflicts all over the world if everybody had behaved fairly and decently. One does wrong and another tries to set it right, and the process keeps the world in a mess.

The innocent suffer with the guilty, of course, but as a rule the pendulum won't hit you if you don't start it going.

Love,
DAD.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

"I want Dickie stuffed with this barley—he used to love it so!"

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 11.—(AP) Mayor Robert M. Hitch has announced he will not be a candidate for re-election in the December primary.

CAPUDINE

Meat for Thanksgiving dinners now must make the grade, as this post-mortem of a tom demonstrates. J. A. Bishop explains the method of selecting good meat to Mrs. Ruth Johnson as they explore the finer points of the art in front of a large rack hung with birds.

Don't Be 'Declasse'--Buy Aristocrat When Shopping for Your Turkey

Fulton County Farm Agent Tells of Standards Lived Up To by Thanksgiving Fowls Raised by Growers Under His Guidance.

"Consider the Thanksgiving turkey."

That yesterday was the admonition of Sid D. Truitt, Fulton county farm agent, as he continued:

"For years we chafed as boys and girls, and have been told that youngsters still complain, because we had to make the grade in school classrooms.

"At least the school youngsters are alive, and don't have to make the grade on a post-mortem examination.

"But that's just what the turkey has to do. Discerning house wives and jobbers now demand graded turkeys. They have to approach a definite standard. So while we may be somewhat irked about making the grades while we live, we have the consolation of knowing that nothing more is required of us after death.

"The approach of the holiday season has focused attention on the hens and toms of the turkey family. Whether one wants a strutting gobbler or a hen, he wants a good bird.

"Fulton county turkey raisers are learning that. They are now feeding out their flocks better than ever before. The meat is firmer, and the fat is even better than in former years. Our turkey farms can compete successfully with products of other sections of the country.

"Grading has become a definite part of good marketing for farmers in our country who depend on turkeys as a source of cash income, whether for the holiday or for intermediate markets.

"The standard which the turkey must reach to come up to scratch is definite, and the United States Department of Agriculture has issued a booklet entitled 'Grading Dressed Turkeys.'

"The days when a producer could sell 'straight run' or mixed lots of turkeys advantageously are past. Grading, proper dressing and proper packing are important.

"So when Atlantans find turkeys displayed in reputable establishments for Thanksgiving or Christmas or any other time, they know the turkeys have made the grade. That is important in the purchase of meat and more and more jobbers are insisting on a strict standard for the products they market."

WOMEN LAWYERS TO SCAN PROBLEMS

Southeastern Group Seeks Appointments as Federal Judges, Attorneys.

Women lawyers from the southeastern states will attempt to iron out some of the problems of their profession today as they continue sessions of their regional conference at the Georgian Terrace hotel.

Among the problems to be taken up are the rights of women lawyers to share in some of the new federal judgeships and district attorney posts now being created.

A banquet sponsored by the Georgia Association of Women Lawyers will climax the conference at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Miss Laura M. Berrien, of Washington, D. C., president of the national association, will deliver the keynote address.

State presidents of the organization will make reports this morning, and this afternoon delegates will discuss their problems and draw up resolutions.

"There is no reason why women shouldn't become judges and district attorneys both for the federal and state governments," Miss Berrien declared yesterday. "I've never seen a woman yet who couldn't stand as much hard work as a man."

A former resident of Waynesboro, Miss Berrien is nationally known as an authority on taxation and as a champion of women's rights in the professional, political and business fields.

FULLER TO COMBAT RIVERS NOMINATION

Savannah Independent Maps Appeal to Assembly.

Attorney E. S. Fuller, of Savannah, unsuccessful independent candidate for Governor, said yesterday he would demand a recount of the general election ballots when the legislature convenes January 9.

Fuller said he would take his contest of the election before the assembly on grounds "that Rivers used his office as Governor to secure a majority of the votes in the general election; that state officeholders devoted their time to help secure the Governor's nomination and election; that Governor Rivers used an excess amount of money in procuring the nomination on the Democratic ticket."

He charged there was "fraud which prevented the election being honest."

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

THE SIXTH COMMANDMENT.

"When are we going to get through with these Ten Commandments?" asked a young friend the other day? "Seems like you have been writing about the Commandments every week for the past year," he continued. I asked him if he would like for the Ten Commandments to be repealed. He looked at me quickly, and said, "Of course not. I was just joking."

Sunday's lesson brings us to the Sixth Commandment, "Thou shalt not kill," Exodus 10:13. Just four short words, but how significant! Linked with this passage of the decalogue, we have a comment of Jesus, "Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer," 1 John 5:15. One may be inclined to pass by lightly the words of the fourth Commandment with the comment that he has never killed anyone and never intends to kill anyone, but what about this comment of Jesus regarding hate? How many of us could dismiss this interpretation of the fourth Commandment lightly?

The fourth Commandment was broken by the first son of Adam and Eve. Cain slew his brother, Abel. We read in 1 John 3:12 that Cain killed Abel because of hatred. And we read in the same chapter that "no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him."

The sacredness of personality is the great truth which we need to understand if we are to properly interpret the sixth Commandment. Jesus kept this truth constantly before His hearers. We cannot claim to be followers of Him and have hatred in our hearts toward any fellow human being. "If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar," 1 John 4:20.

What are the ways by which we violate the sixth Commandment? Just in the form of taking another's life by violence? What about the oppressive measures by which countless lives have been slowly smothered? What about the iniquitous schemes for selfish gain that have robbed little children and helpless men and women? What about the snares that have been cast in the pathway of young people for the sake of a few sordid dollars?

"Thou shalt not kill!"

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

". . . The good old rule
Sufficeth them—the simple plan,
That they should take who have the power,
And they should keep who can."

Some will be telling Franklin Delano Roosevelt now that he, and he alone, can save his party and his deal. Others will be saying that his party and his deal are still the people's choice and he must not cease to serve them. But the friends who love his fame and their country's good the best will tell him that the greatest thing he can do now to seal what he has accomplished is to establish in new terms an old rule. They will tell him to set his face finally and completely against thought of a third term.

For if there was reason against a third term in George Washington's day, if there was reason in Theodore Roosevelt's day, if there was reason in the day of Calvin Coolidge, there is extra reason now. The extra reason is the extra power—in money to lend and give, in jobs to bestow, in enterprises to launch—under the "new imperative" of government responsibility for national economic well-being which the years since 1929 have brought permanently to pass.

It is the same extra reasoning that made Franklin Roosevelt's attempted purgings in senatorial and congressional races more improper and dangerous than Woodrow Wilson's. It is the unprecedented quantity of money and jobs at the disposal of the chief executive and the fact that the nation seems to have come to a place in its day of mass and machine where, to a greater or lesser extent, there is going to go on being qauntities of money and jobs for the executive control. That is a big part of what the New Deal means, and to deny the new rules it makes necessary is to deny the New Deal. The greatest of all the new rules is the new emphasis upon the old rule, the rule against third terms, the rule against any tendency, temptation, example, or precedent, for having the vast power of the government employed to maintain itself. More important now than a New Deal already well dealt is the principle of democracy under which the New Deal must live if it is to count. And that principle cannot be saved for long if the power of democratic office is not kept scrupulously seperate from the power of return to democratic office.

We are against a third term for Franklin D. Roosevelt because we are for so much of the first term and the second. We are against it because we are for Franklin Roosevelt. We believe that if he runs he will be defeated and will deserve defeat because of a failure to respect the implications of a thing he himself brought magnificently to pass.

Surely the President himself sees it this way. With prosperity coming back to his country, with some of his most bitter and powerful critics reconciled at last to many of the reforms he has brought about, with a name established in history as one of the great presidents of his country and benefactors of mankind, how sensible and happy a thing it should be for him to move out in 1940 with all his colors flying and his great career at peak! And how sorrowful a thing, in contrast, to overstay, as so many other statesmen have overstayed, to live politically too long, to end it all far from the top of it all—as Theodore Roosevelt did, and Bryan, and Woodrow Wilson.

SCROLL IS PRESENTED FOR HARRINGTON WORK

W. Eugene Harrington, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce during 1936 and 1937, was the possessor yesterday of a parchment scroll for his work in the organization. It was given to him at a banquet Thursday night.

The parchment, presented by Charles F. Palmer, present head of the Chamber, praises Harrington for "rendition of valuable service to his city and state," and was given "in recognition of splendid service."

PARADES HIGHLIGHT STATE OBSERVANCE OF ARMISTICE DAY

Atlantans Attend Program at Grant Field After Record Procession.

Predictions of war and prayers of hope for peace mingled in Atlanta and Georgia yesterday as many thousands of men, women and children joined in the celebration of the 20th anniversary of the armistice which ended the World War.

One of the largest Armistice Day parades in years highlighted the observance in Atlanta, but many and varied were the programs of commemoration in the cities and towns throughout the state.

Varied Observances.

Parades, barbecues, sports events, dances, military displays and an air tour were among functions in which Georgians participated to mark Armistice Day.

Governor Rivers, Major J. Walter LeCraw, commander of Atlanta post No. 1, American Legion; Colonel John B. Richardson, adjutant general of the Fourth Corps Area; Major General Stanley D. Embick, fourth corps area commander; Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, were among those taking part in the Atlanta program which was culminated in speeches and music at Grant field.

"Victory Ball."

A four-point "positive insurance" against war was advanced at Forsyth by Quimby Melton, Griffin editor. He advocated: 1. A national defense of sufficient strength to command the respect of the world; 2. Immediate deportation of all aliens who have not signified intention of becoming naturalized; 3. Suppression of all subversive doctrines, and stoppage of further immigration.

Dedication of Armistice Day to "truth and right and freedom of humanity" was called for in Macon by Miss Moina Michael, Athens, internationally famous originator of the "Poppy Day" sales for the benefit of veterans.

Failure of League.

Deploring the failure of the League of Nations and the rise of European dictatorships, Justice John B. Guerry, of the Georgia court of appeals, delivered the main address at a program in Athens.

"In the light of what is happening now and the imminence of another world conflict, I am wondering if Woodrow Wilson's dream would not be 10 times preferable to the conditions which are now certain to plunge the world and probably America into another cataclysm," he declared. "The Versailles treaty is a mere scrap of paper, the League of Nations is a joke and the dominating philosophy in the world at present is might rather than right."

A long parade, including the Rome High School band, Trion band, Rome and Lindale Legionnaires and ex-service men and the Rome High student body, marched down Broad street to Myrtle Hill cemetery, where the annual service is held at the grave of the Known Soldier. Dean Owens presided at the meeting.

Elberton observed the day by dedicating a large granite monument in American Legion park by the Star Service Legion. Captain Howard Payne made the dedicatory address and the Rev. Hoke Shirley spoke of peace. Three military companies, American Legion, Boy Scouts and high school pupils marched to the park and took part in the exercises.

Did They Dunk?--Doughnuts and Coffee for Veterans

Doughnuts 'n' coffee—evoking memories of 20 years ago—were popular as ex-service men attended a pre-Armistice Day celebration Thursday night at Taft Hall. Members of Gate City Post No. 72, American Legion, were hosts. Shown, left to right, above, are J. C. Hambright, past commander of Lyle Brewster Post, Legion, College Park; Cadet Pauline Dudding, Salvation Army; W. C. Mendenhall, Atlanta Post No. 1, Legion, and Harry Phillips, past commander, Gate City Post.

Here comes the parade! The American Legion's Armistice Day parade yesterday wound through the heart of Atlanta en route to Grant field for memorial ceremonies.

PARIS IS ELECTED BY CASKET GROUP

Atlantan Heads National Manufacturers' Association.

Election of E. Ralph Paris, of Atlanta, as president of the Casket Manufacturers' Association, was announced here yesterday.

Paris, secretary-treasurer and general manager of the Atlanta Casket Company, was chosen at the conclusion of the national convention of the organization held in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The association is one of the oldest trade groups in the country, having been first organized in 1888 as the National Burial Case Association. It was reorganized in 1910 under its present title.

CONFEDERATE VET DIES.

OIL DEBT PAYMENT.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 11.—(UP) President Lazaro Cardenas today told a newspaper interviewer that Mexico's debt to foreign oil companies for expropriated properties will be paid in 10 years.

U. S. ARMY TO GET 2 NEW FAST GUNS

Weapons Will Be Used To Cope With Airplanes and Tanks.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP) The War Department announced today the army would be equipped with two "new and highly effective" guns to cope with airplanes and tanks.

The weapons, a fast firing anti-aircraft gun and a light but powerful anti-tank gun reflecting military lessons of the Spanish conflict, have been standardized after extensive tests.

Both are of 37-millimeter caliber, hurling shells about one and one-half inches in diameter. A limited number is being turned out already with funds congress provided this year. Funds for others are understood to be included in the administration's extensive new rearmament program.

The anti-aircraft weapon, weighing about 5,000 pounds, is designed to pour a heavy volume of fire against hostile planes flying up to 10,000 feet.

NAVY WILL SPEND $107,000,000 ON WORK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP) The navy, a survey disclosed today, is spending approximately $107,000,000 in major rehabilitation work on its shore establishments.

Navy officials said much of the new work was necessary because of the new fleet expansion program, while the remainder was in the nature of necessary maintenance of existing facilities.

The total includes funds from regular navy appropriations, regular navy public works, the second deficiency appropriation act and about $56,000,000 in public works and Works Progress Administration allotments.

POPE TO BEAUTIFY AMERICAN SUNDAY

Mother Cabrini Will Be First So Honored.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP) For the first time in history a citizen of the United States will officially be declared blessed by the Catholic church on Sunday when the venerable Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini is beatified by Pope Pius XI.

Founder of the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart, Mother Cabrini also is known as the apostle of the immigrants because of her work for their benefit in schools, hospitals and orphanages.

Born in Italy in 1850, she came to the United States in 1889 and carried on her labors in New York city, Chicago and other places. She was a long-time resident of Chicago and died in that city.

VOTE PROBE SOUGHT BY INDIANA G. O. P.

'Fight Against Corruption, Political Pressure' Pledged by Losers.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 11.—(AP) Apparently defeated in his attempt to unseat incumbent Democratic United States Senator Frederick Van Nuys, Raymond E. Willis, stock Angola Republican publisher, tonight added fuel to Indiana's hottest off-year election in a decade with a statement pledging "continuation of the fight just begun against corruption, reckless spending and misuse of political pressure by government."

The up-state newspaperman issued a lengthy statement after a meeting of Republican officials here in which they decided to file petitions, in federal court, to impound voting machines and ballots in six Indiana counties.

Complete unofficial returns from the state's 3,872 precincts indicated the Democrats had swept into office all state candidates with the exception of Appellate Court Judge William H. Bridwell, of Evansville, who was apparently defeated by Edgar Durre, Evansville Republican.

Unofficial tabulations gave Van Nuys 784,155 and Willis 777,620 votes.

G. O. P. IS ACCUSED OF WPA "PROMISES"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Senator Guffey, Democrat, Pennsylvania, said in a statement tonight that he was convinced Republicans obtained "scores of thousands of votes" in Pennsylvania "by promising WPA workers a minimum wage of $100 a month."

He added, "Many of their candidates promised old-age pensions of $200 per month" and that it would be "interesting to see how well the Republicans fulfill the pledges of their 'ham and egg' campaign in view of Judge James' repeated pledges of economy, as well as tax reductions."

OWENS NOMINATED BY REALTOR GROUP

Atlantan Selected for Regional Vice President.

Frank C. Owens, of 81 West Pace's Ferry road, N. W., vice president-treasurer of the Draper-Owens Company here, yesterday was nominated as southeastern regional vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, according to Associated Press dispatches from Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Elections will be held today, and nomination is tantamount to election. At the same meeting, E. L. Ostendorf, of Cleveland, Ohio, was nominated as president and Charles S. Wanless, of Springfield, Ill., was nominated as treasurer.

BARUCH IS HONORED BY WAR-TIME AIDE

War Industries Board Members Stress New Needs for Preparedness.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—In his memoirs, von Hindenburg gave great credit for the allied victory in the World War to the "brilliant, but pitiless" American industry.

Twenty years after the Armistice, those who led American industry in that war gathered today in a reunion and paid tribute to their leader, Bernard M. Baruch, who then was chairman of the War Industries Board.

More than 150 men from all parts of the country, prominent in every field of industrial life, joined in presenting their wartime chief with a bust of himself which, by invitation of the War Department, will be placed alongside those of General John J. Pershing and the late Newton D. Baker, then secretary of war, in the main hall of the Army War College in Washington.

The members and aides of the War Industries Board—"dollar-a-year men"—at the reunion, laid stress on the new needs for preparedness—in what Baruch called "a world situation that has become an acute problem affecting the United States"—and unanimously adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, that the President of the United States be heartily commended by the members of the former War Industries Board, at its 20th anniversary reunion, on his announced purpose of pushing forward a complete program of military preparedness, including particularly industrial mobilization."

JAPANESE OCCUPY GATEWAY TO HUNAN

SHANGHAI, Nov. 12.—(Saturday)—(AP)—Japanese troops early today occupied Yochow, gateway to Hunan province, to register a major gain in their drive on Changsha, provincial capital.

Battering down Chinese resistance, the invaders fought their way across the walls of Yochow by moonlight. The victory gave them possession of an important rail and river center and placed them within 80 miles of Changsha.

LONGSHOREMAN HELD IN NAZI SHIP BLAST

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 11.—(AP) A longshoreman was arrested today for questioning concerning the explosion which disabled the German freighter Vancouver in the Oakland estuary, November 3.

Police Officer H. A. Hartke said the man, booked as Herbert Huntsman, 58, was taken into custody at the dock where the vessel was being unloaded.

WARD DEATH PROBE TO REOPEN TUESDAY

Cobb Solicitor Indicates No Solution of Case Is Imminent.

MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 11.—Cobb grand jurymen recessed this this afternoon until Tuesday without any announcement regarding their three-day probe of the shooting of young W. A. Ward, Marietta ex-wrestler, who died October 31 of pistol wounds in the abdomen.

Solicitor Grady Vandiviere intimated no solution of the case was imminent. Court attaches said more than 20 witnesses had testified.

Before Ward died, he told officers he was shot by a hitch-hiker near Smyrn.

Still on the docket of the grand jury is consideration of charges against 26 Cobb county youths in connection with anti-negro demonstrations at Smyrna October 17 and 18.

Trial of Willie Russell, negro, charged with the murder of an aged Cobb farmer and his daughter, which led to the Smyrna disturbances, is slated for next week.

'HORN TORTURERS' BEWARE!---IT'S WAR

Machine Will Register Volumn of Downtown Clatter To Test Success.

A two-week campaign to make Atlanta 'anti-noise conscious" will be launched by a special committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce November 21.

A "noise measuring machine" will register the amount of noise at different downtown points at different hours of the day.

Much of the drive will be concentrated on unnecessary blowing of automobile horns in the downtown section but all kinds of noises will be included. Co-operation of the police department has been promised by Chief Hornsby.

"We feel that Atlanta will be much more pleasant if we can just quiet it down a bit," Hugh Saussy, committee chairman, said yesterday. "We also feel that this can best be accomplished by getting the public to work with us. It's true that we will have the help of the police department, but education rather than force will be stressed."

Preliminary details now being mapped out include plans for street car posters, signs to be hung under traffic lights, radio programs, newspaper articles, radio skits and announcements, moving picture trailers and other kinds of publicity.

In addition to the orchestra the Wiecua Inn management is offering a floor show and an eight-course dinner.

MINISTER PRAISES FILM AT ERLANGER

Dr. Flinn Urges All To See Wilson Movie.

Expressing appreciation to the American Legion for making available to the public the film "Woodrow Wilson and the World War," Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, urges the public to see this pictorial history during its current showing at the Erlanger.

In a letter to Commander J. Walter Le Craw, Dr. Orme said, "I got away from Presbytery long enough to look in and am writing to express my appreciation for what you and your post are doing to keep the memory of Woodrow Wilson fresh in the minds of the rising generation.

This film will be shown daily through Sunday night, from 2:30 until 11 o'clock, the program lasting two and one-half hours. In addition to the historical film there is a full-length feature, "The Heart of New York," featuring Al Jolson, Madge Evans and Frank Morgan.

creased armament expenditures, General Moseley said:

"Let me warn you to analyze current war scares carefully. Under the more abundant life theory, billions were made available and their expenditure added enormously to the political power of the government. Perhaps the 'more abundant' theory has about expended itself and we are now going to make large additional sums available under the guise of national defense."

Sea Power Answer.

"The answer to Germany in South America—if there is any real menace there—is sea power and the subsidizing of our South American trade against Germany," he declared.

"With Japan absorbed in conquering China in the Far East, with the balance of power in Europe so nearly equal, where is there any military or naval strength free to threaten us at home? It goes without saying that a reasonable, progressive program of preparedness must go on and on."

The general explained that "we must not get our people in a state of hysteria and then, taking advantage of their nervous condition, place upon them large additional burdens for national defense."

Balanced Budget.

General Moseley asked that bureauocracy be reduced so as to bring the cost of the federal government under five billion dollars and that the budget be balanced.

"Perhaps, after all, in our debt of 40 billions of dollars there is one highly gratifying by-product," he continued. "If proof were necessary, we have it now that there was nothing wrong with the fundamental principles and policies which governed us before 1932 and which made us one of the greatest nations known to history.

"The greatest power working against religion today in America is the debased American political dollar in the hands of political organization, coupled with graft and with crime."

"As to labor conditions throughout America, they will grow worse before they grow better. Improvement will not come until all labor organizations are required to incorporate under federal law. Then they can be held responsible for their acts, just as any corporation may be so held."

TROUP GRAND JURY RAPS PAROLE BODY

'Unwarranted Clemency' Is Hit; Rights of Citizens Cited in Presentments.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Nov. 11.—Recommendations returned today by the Troup county grand jury placed that body on record as viewing "with alarm the acts of the prison and parole commission of Georgia in the granting of unwarranted clemency in the many cases from our state."

"The State Prison and Parole Commission and Governor, by their acts, are nullifying the work of courts in releasing criminals in the state on payment of nominal fees, or without any punishment at all," the presenments said. "Numerous offenders, from murder to minor offenses, have been paroled in our county, as we are advised by our officers, without cause or justification. At least one offender was paroled before the court finally passed on his case.

"In the granting of paroles, the commisson acts on any information which the prisoner may submit, regardless of whether the information comes from authentic sources or not. Our information is that these paroles are granted invariably over the protest of the offices of the court. All consideration should not be for the criminal; the law abiding citizen and law enforcement agencies are due to be considerd.

"Attenttion is directed to the great danger which the indiscriminate grant of paroles creates, in that the habitual criminal does not fear punishment, knowing that he can apply to the commission and obtain his freedom regardless of the nature of the offense.

"The attention of our legislators and our senators is directed to this evel, and they are requested to undertake to have remedial legislation enacted."

Bulldogs in Shape For Wave Struggle

High Scoring Game in Prospect Before 18,000 at New Orleans.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 11.—Joel Hunt landed his swashbucklin' band of Bulldog buckaneers safely in this historic old city and immediately began plans to stop the roaring Green Wave of Tulane tomorrow afternoon.

Despite the fact this is Armistice Day, the Red Raiders of Georgia are in no peaceful mood. Recalling the way in which the immortal Jean LaFitte took charge of the Battle of New Orleans in 1815, Hunt's charges are confident they will have the situation as well in hand as did that riproaring cut-throat who saved the city from destruction.

DEPEND ON MIMS.

Coach Hunt plainly states Billy Mims will be his Jean LaFitte. To the mechanical chatter of the guide on the sight-seeing bus, Joel reiterated his statement, "Georgia is hoping to match the Wave touchdown for touchdown."

Of course, Red Dawson's eleven, with its Brunners, Kelloggs and WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Flying Cardinals of Catholic University defeated Miami (Florida) University, 7 to 0, today in an American Legion - sponsored Armistice Day football game.

VANDY TO UPSET VOLS--MORRISON

Commodores Primed for Test With Unbeaten Tennessee Today.

By TOM SILER.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Ray Morrison threw away his crying towel today and came out with the flat prediction his Vanderbilt team "will win" over the undefeated and untied Tennessee Volunteers here tomorrow.

The prediction, apparently made to gain a psychological edge, came despite the fact Vanderbilt has several injured players, including varsity Quarterback Lunny Hollins.

"We're gonna take 'em."

"Our boys are ready," asserted the Commodore mentor. "They believe in themselves. I think they will play their best game. We have the stuff and I think we will win."

Back in 1936 Morrison defied precedent by predicting that Vanderbilt would whip Georgia Tech which was favored by three

Editor's Note: In the absence of Sports Editor Jack Troy, who is ill at his home, this morning's "All In The Game" is written by Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution.

"Who is that coming on the field?" he asked, peering into the sun.

"It looks like Old Black Joe because his head sure is bending low."

And, sure enough, that's who it was, Mr. William Alexander, The Man at the Flats.

The Georgia Tech football coach had been in looking at knees. Three of his performers have joined the Knee Kap Klan and positively will not play in the game this afternoon against the Crimson Crushers from Alabama. The knees were quite large.

He was hatless and coatless in a warm sun. His smile

NO BOWL GAMES FOR DUKE--WADE

'This Has Been a Long, Hard Year for Us,' Says Wallace.

By DREW MIDDLETON.

SYRACUSE, N. J., Nov. 11.—(AP) Wallace Wade, the thin miracle man of southern football, a coach whose teams never have lost in the Rose Bowl, is not interested in a bid to any post-season game for his Duke team, currently the nation's only major unbeaten, untied and unscored-upon eleven.

"I do not think we're interested," Wade said with a smile when he was asked if Duke would accept a bid should it get past Syracuse tomorrow, North Carolina State and Pittsburgh. "Even if we're bid, I think Duke will just finish off the season and let the Bowl games go. We've Alabama Throws Full Strength Into Fray at Grant Field This Afternoon.

By TOM McRAE.

A badly crippled Georgia Tech team will seek to avenge a 7-0 loss dealt it last year by Alabama when the two elevens clash today at 2 o'clock on Grant Field before an expected crowd of 26,000.

There is a Cinderella story in the game. Louis Perkerson is in Coach W. A. Alexander's probable starting lineup at left tackle. Perkerson has played with the Bee team most of the season. At the start of the week he was moved to the varsity when injuries sidelined three of the four best tackles—Walter Rimmer, Charlie Wood and Eston Lackey.

He has shown steady improvement and this 180-pound boy will start his first game, the first game he will have ever played in as a member of the Tech varsity.

The three tackles named are all lost to Tech. Rob Ison, who suffered a broken leg in the Vanderbilt game, will be replaced by Tom Allen, a good defensive end. Allen Wilcox, one of Tech's three best guards, may play a few minutes but won't start.

Joe Bartlett, who started the Kentucky game, will be at tailback in the place of little Billy Gibson. Gibson has taken a terrific beating in the games so far, but will probably play a while today. Bartlett, a sophomore, lacks experience but may cause the Tide no little trouble with his hard running. The other positions are filled by the ones who have started the other Jacket games.

Coach Frank Thomas said that his lineup will be the same that

BROWN SHADED BY HOLY CROSS

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 11. (AP)—Holy Cross' powerful football team beat the clock with a smashing rally today and defeated Brown's underrated team, 14-to 12.

Behind, 7-13, with only 45 seconds to play, Bill Omanski climaxed two fourth period drives by plunging two yards for the victorious touchdown and Bill Turner, with his second toe-conversion, added the unneeded point.

Earlier in the period, Omanski led the bruising line assault for the first Holy Cross touchdown, which he scored on two plunges from the five-yard line.

Up to this point Brown had made a valiant stand to the amazement of 25,000 spectators. Aided by breaks—two Holy Cross touchdowns were nullified by penalties—the Bears entered the last period with a 12-to-0 lead.

They scored within three minutes of the opening touchdown, on a 68-yard passing and running attack. Bones Stepczyk, on the eighth play of the drive, plunged over from the two-yard mark.

Early in the third period, John McLaughry twisted out of the hands of four tacklers and dashed 30 yards to the goal line, where Safety Man Latanzi's hard tackle caused the ball carrier to fumble. George Mawhinney, Brown guard, however, fell on the ball over the goal line for the touchdown:

Notre Dame Favored Over Minnesota---Duke Over Syracuse

CORNELL TO TEST DARTMOUTHCLUB THIS AFTERNOON

Yale Meets Princeton; Trojans Must Get by Washington.

By BILL BONI.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Ten members of the country's fast-shrinking group of unbeaten and untied major football teams swing into action this week end against opposition that looms as formidable as any they will be called on to face between now and the approaching end of the wide-open, high-scoring 1938 campaign.

Dartmouth in the east, against well-primed Cornell before a capacity house of 29,000; Notre Dame in the midwest, against burly Minnesota in a game that was a 65,000 sellout a week ago; Tennessee in the south, against resourceful Vanderbilt; Texas Christian in the southwest, favored but in no position to be caught napping by Texas, and Santa Clara in the far west, matched with rugged St. Mary's in a Sunday game, furnish the program's high spots.

Of the other all-winning survivors, unscored-on Duke faces Syracuse; Georgetown meets West Virginia; Oklahoma and Iowa tied for the Bix Six lead, tackle Missouri and Kansas State, respectively, and Western Reserve plays neighboring John Carroll.

Not all of the excitement will be furnished by the most successful teams. Yale and Princeton, in a renewal of football's oldest unbroken rivalry, appear set for a first-lass dogfite, while Pittsburgh tries to come back against Nebraska; Southern California, newly elevated to the Pacific Coast Conference lead, tries to strengthen that position with a victory over Washington, and Northwestern and Michigan, before the day's top crowd of 80,000, battle for a higher bracket in Western Conference circles.

Bolting the doors and windows against misleading last-minute hunches, this observer submits the following forecasts (probable attendance figures in parentheses):

Tennessee - Vanderbilt (22,000)—They say Tennessee still hasn't shown its full hand. This might be a good spot to have an ace up each sleeve.

Cornell-Dartmouth (29,000)—Cornell's line strength and reserves against Dartmouth's high-geared backs. The Ithacans also have backs, but then that Indian line can't be too bad either. Dartmouth, likely on a second-half drive, and close.

Notre Dame-Minnesota (65,000)—After the Gophers, Notre Dame gets Northwestern and Southern California. That's a big order, but the way Elmer Layden has been sending his men in by platoons should give this to Notre Dame.

Texas Christian-Texas (18,000)—Looks like the year's eighth straight victory for T. C. U. and eighth straight loss for the Longhorns.

Washington-Southern California (25,000) Southern California, though Washington may make it close even without a wooden horse to foil the men of Troy.

Princeton-Yale (50,000)—Throw the records out the window. Princeton, but watch out for those Eli passes.

Nebraska-Pittsburgh (33,000)—Pitt. They have an incentive now.

Syracuse-Duke (15,000)—Each beat Colgate 7-0. That's merely confusing. Banking on the Blue Devils' stout defense, Duke.

Michigan-Northwestern (80,000)—A good spot to duck and run. Doing both in the same motion, Northwestern.

Oklahoma-Missouri (23,000)—Missouri has scored in every game but the Sooners have the type of crashing ends to blanket Paul Christian, Oklahoma.

Iowa State-Kansas State (10,000)—Everett Kischer and Iowa State should continue undefeated, but it's likely to be a real battle.

Chicago-College of the Pacific (20,000) Old Man Stagg comes home. He'll be sitting on the Chicago side of the field from where, probably, he also will see Chicago win.

Georgia Tech-Alabama (26,000)—Alabama packs more punch.

Fordham-North Carolina (25,000)—A nice spot for an upset, with Fordham crippled at three vital spots. Still, Fordham.

Tulane-Georgia (13,000)—Tulane, on the theory they're better seasoned because of a tougher schedule.

Santa Clara-St. Mary's (Sunday)—An 8,000-mile sightseeing tour and a bruising game with Fordham won't have done the Gaels any good. Santa Clara.

U. C. L. A.-Wisconsin (50,000)—Having had bad luck going against the Bruins when they were at home, and finding little else to choose between the two, U. C. L. A.

HERE AND THERE.

East—Navy over Columbia narrowly; Carnegie Tech over Duquesne; Pennsylvania over Penn State; Georgetown over West Virginia; Amherst to beat Williams for Little Three title; Kansas over George Washington; Harvard over Virginia; La-Fayette over Rutgers; Villanova over Temple; Army over Chattanooga.

Midwest—Indiana over Iowa; Illinois over Ohio State; Michigan State over Marquette; Western Reserve over John Carroll.

South—Louisiana State over Auburn; Clemson over Kentucky; Mississippi State over Centenary; Mississippi over Sewanee; Florida over Maryland; Detroit over North Carolina State.

Southwest and Far West—Arkansas over Southern Methodist; Rice over Texas A. & M.; California over Oregon; Oregon State over Stanford; Washington State over Idaho; Utah over Colorado State.

ROME, Ga., Nov. 11.—Led by Richardson, a powerful driving fullback, the G. M. A. Cadets tonight were victorious over the Darlington Tigers, 20 to 6.

Only in the last period was the Darlington team able to score, the tally coming on a pass to Guinn from Todd.

Darlington held the G. M. A. team for four downs on the 1-yard line for the feature of the game and took the ball on their own 20.

I'll Take the Crackers, Declares Frank Thomas

Tide Coach Gives Lowdown on Alabama-Tech Game Today at Atlanta Alumni Banquet.

By THAD HOLT.

"I'll take the Crackers—right on the nose."

Thus did cagey Frank Thomas, Alabama football coach, answer the gentlemen who interviewed him at last night's banquet staged by Atlanta's Alabama Alumni Chapter and wanted to hear Thomas' prediction on the Tech-Tide struggle this afternoon.

"Who was the greatest back you ever coached, Mr. Thomas?"

"Dixie Howell, of my 1934 team. He was the greatest I ever coached and the greatest I ever saw."

"Charley Holm. He can go for my money."

"Now getting back to tomorrow's game, Mr. Thomas. Who do you think will—"

PHYSICALLY, YEAH!

The leader of the Crimson Tide explained that his team was physically perfect. "But I never know about the boys' mental condition until the kickoff and they start going down the field. A lot of times a coach thinks his club is ready when in truth it is ready to be murdered."

Thomas thinks Jack Chivington, Georgia Tech center; Quinton Lumpkin, Georgia pivot man, and Jim Fordham, Bulldog fullback, are All-Southern and All-American possibilities. Ty Coon, Kentucky tackle, is the greatest lineman his team has faced this year—George Cafego, of Tennessee, the greatest back.

The Atlanta alumni banquet was well attended. Pictures of the Tide's smashing 19-7 victory over Southern California were shown. And Tech should trust that the Red Elephants don't block today as they did at Los Angeles.

ROWING TO COME.

Dr. Richard C. Foster, president of the University, cited the broad expansion which has taken place in Alabama under the inspiring directorship of Chancellor Mike Denny.

E. T. (Ed) Smith served as the able toastmaster; recalled his days at Alabama when football triumphs were a rarity, but mentioned a victory over Auburn, and addressed Dr. Foster directly in expressing a wish the two schools might meet again.

William J. Porter is president of the Atlanta Tide chapter and it was through his efforts and of those of Franklin Smith and his committee that last night's function was successful.

"Before you leave Coach Thomas—don't you figure Alabama is a bit too strong for the Jackets."

"Take my advice, son. Play those Crackers. Paul Richards has a triple theater in that Buster Chatham."

BOYS' HI HOLDS KNOXVILLE TEAM TO DEADLOCK, 0-0

Atlantans Outplay Trojans; Barfield, Greer Shine for Purples.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Knoxville High school's winning streak of 20 straight games was snapped today by a heavier Boys' High team, of Atlanta, that outplayed the Trojans but could do no better than gain a scoreless tie.

Led by two speedy backs, Jim Barfield and Joe Greer, the Atlantans drove within Knoxville's 15-yard stripe on three occasions, but lacked the punch to carry the ball over. Boys' High piled up 11 first downs to three for Knoxville and accumulated a net of 182 yards against 66.

A fumble proved costly to the blue-shirted Atlantans shortly before the half ended. Sparked by a 32-yard jaunt by Joe Greer, Boys' High drove from their own 27-yard line to Knoxville's six before a Trojan pounced on a fumble to halt the threat.

Early in the fourth period the Georgia eleven started a drive that carried 53 yards to the Knoxville 11 before it bogged down. Greer made successive runs of 22 and 11 yards in the march, but was halted in his tracks inside the Trojans' 15-yard stripe.

After holding for downs, Cooper fumbled for Knoxville and Brown recovered for Boys' High. Four plays netted the Atlantans a loss of two yards and Roberts kicked out of danger for Knoxville.

Knoxville had only one semblance of a scoring chance, running back a kick Jake Bromberg got off from his own one-yard line to Boys' 25. Four plays netted only five yards and the ball went over. It was the closest to the visitors' goal the Trojans, unbeaten and untied since 1936, got.

Marist College Wins Over Commercial

By ROY WHITE.

Marist College sidestepped its non-scoring jinx, went to work in the first quarter and defeated Commercial High, 19 to 6, Friday night at Ponce de Leon park. The defeat, coupled with Decatur High's victory over Griffin, left Decatur alone at the head of the North Georgia Interscholastic conference race.

Rated an even chance to win, despite the lack of a scoring punch in most of their games this season, Marist took command soon after the game opened and was in the driver's seat most of the way.

Marist kicked to Commercial and after two first downs were made, Marist received a punt on its own 31-yard line and drove 69 yards to a touchdown without losing the ball. A beautiful 25-yard pass, Holder to Leatherwood, from a reverse, scored the touchdown. Not a Commercial player was within 10 yards of Leatherwood when he caught the ball and ran on unmolested to a touchdown.

Marist recovered a fumble on Commercial's 16-yard line to start the other touchdown drive late in the second quarter. Palmer dived over the line for a one-yard gain for the six points, after a first down had been made in short line thrusts. Shortly before the touchdown drive was started, Marist carried the ball 88 yards from its own 11 to Commercial's 1 before losing it on a fumble. Cumberworth's 45-yard sprint and Palmer's 16-yard run to Commercial's 1-yard stripe, were outstanding gains in the long march.

Commercial came back strong in the third quarter and scored on a 52-yard drive. A 20-yard pass, Elrod to Bradford, scored. The Typists staged a long march just before the half ended which had the ball on Marist's six-yard line.

In desperation, Commercial began throwing passes on every down in the fourth quarter and Leatherwood grabbed one and ran unmolested 40 yards to Marist's final touchdown.

Decatur Swamps Griffin, 26 to 0, Tops N.G.I.C.

Decatur High took undisputed leadership of the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference football race with a 20-to-0 victory over Griffin High, Friday night at Decatur, as Commercial was losinging 19 to 6 to Marist at Ponce de Leon Park.

Decatur scored twice in the first quarter, coasted in the second period and came back with one each in the final two periods.

The first touchdown came after an 85-yard drive with Kennerly scoring on a sixyard smash over center. Kennerly again rammed the Griffin line for a touchdown, as the climax of a 65-yard drive.

Pierce blocked a Griffin punt and recovered for another score and Morgan drove through the line for the final touchdown after another 65-yard march.

touchdowns. The game ended in a scoreless tie.

Bob Neyland, on the other hand, said "I'll be tickled to death if we get out with any kind of a victory over Vanderbilt—I am well pleased with the spirit of the boys and I think they'll be ready for a pretty good game tomorrow."

Meanwhile, students of both schools, bitter grid rivals since 1892, took possession of Nashville, fully aware that the Southeastern Conference championship and an almost certain "bowl bid" probably rests with the outcome of the game.

Morrison has indicated he will not start Bert Marshall, 150-pound sub Hollins, but will shift 190-pound Roy Huggins, sophomore, from fullback to quarter. At fullback, the probable starter is Abe Palmer, junior college recruit out all season with injuries. Both Huggins and Palmer pass, kick and run.

High temperatures and probable rain is forecast for tomorrow. A sellout crowd of 22,000 is assured.

960 Out of 1,000 Men—in Survey—Confirmed Our Belief that Old Quaker—Now 3 Years Old—Means Real Economy in Whiskey!

● You'll welcome this news! You can save money on whiskey without cutting corners on quality. Why do we say so? Because the judgment of 960 out of 1,000 men is that Old Quaker—now 3 years old—is a mild, ripe, full-bodied whiskey. But—we call your attention to the fact that Old Quaker sells at an economical price.

We actually sought out 1,000 men—from 22 states—asked them to try Old Quaker and give us their unbiased opinion. "Smell it!", we said. "Taste it! Swallow a drink of it! Then, tell us what you think!"

Not one of these men knew the name, age or price of the whiskey he was trying. Yet 960 praised its smoothness, mellowness, mildness. So again, we say:—Look at Old Quaker's economical price.

TECH FRESHMEN DEFEAT AUBURN IN 14-TO-7 BATTLE

Two Fumbles Set Up Scoring Chances for Baby Jackets.

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 11.—Costly Auburn fumbles in the second quarter set the stage for two Georgia Tech touchdowns and the Baby Jackets trimmed the Tiger Cubs, 14-7, here today in the renewal of one of the leading first year football classics in the Southeastern conference. The win enabled Tech to protect a perfect record.

Behind, 7-0, after Auburn had scored a touchdown early in the second quarter on a 12-yard pass from Woodie McNair to Theodore Cremer that followed one engineered by the same pair that gained 40 yards, the Baby Jackets located a scoring punch in the second three plays after James Wright had recovered McNair's fumble on Auburn's 12. Charlie Sanders gained two on a line buck and two passes from Johnnie Bosch to George Webb completed the touchdown assault. Ralph Plaster place-kicked for the extra point and knotted the count.

A short time later Albert Muerth bounced on Bobby Vann's fumble for Tech on Auburn's 32. Bosch shot to the 18 on the next play and a five-yard penalty placed the ball on the losers' 13. Surprising the Cubs, Tech pulled the end-around play and Harry Arthur scored standing up from the 13. Plaster also place-kicked for the second extra tally, and Tech protected its lead in the final half, although their margin of victory was in a shaky position several times.

TECH BEES BEAT MONROE, 14 TO 0

MONROE, Ga., Nov. 11.—Georgia Tech's reserves defeated a crippled Monroe Aggie eleven, 14 to 0, here this afternoon, in an Armistice Day football game.

Bill Yearout, Monroe's offensive star, was reinjured in the third quarter. He made one of the best plays of the game shortly before he was injured when he caught a Tech runner from behind on the five-yard line.

SEAY IS WINNER OF AUTO EVENT

Lloyd Seay, blond 20-year-old Atlantan, became the world's stock car auto race champion at Atlanta Friday when he roared to victory in the 135-mile race, called by darkness 15 miles ahead of the scheduled 150 miles, in a contest marked by spectacular accidents.

Seay drove a Ford strictly stock automobile and was the sensation of the race, coming from behind after having two right side flat tires and blazing through the field to win the diamond trophy and the world title in a race sanctioned by the International Stock Car Racing Association at Lakewood speedway.

The elapsed time was two hours, 29 minutes and 42.8 seconds, with four miles run under the yellow flag near the outset when Ralph Forrester, Atlanta, and Henri Guerand, Newark, N. J., wrecked in the first turn. Ernest Bush, Atlanta, climbed out of his burning car at the 20-mile mark when he turned over and smashed into the wreckage of the Guerand car.

Chief "Ride in the Storm" Chitwood, Pawhuska (Okla.) Cherokee Indian, was second and Dan Murphy, Daytona Beach, Fla., driving Smoky Purser's mount, was third, with Bill France, Daytona Beach, fourth.

Other finishers were Roy Hall, Atlanta, fifth; Pete Craig, Atlanta, sixth; Al Wheatley, Jacksonville, seventh; Bill Moore, Gainesville, Ga., eighth; Felton McConnell, Anniston, Ala., ninth, and Lew Wallace, Indianapolis, tenth.

AT LONG LAST.

LA VERNE, Cal., Nov. 11.—(AP) California Institute of Technology snapped its 21-game losing record today by defeating La Verne College, 13 to 6. Caltech's victory was somewhat empty, however, because La Verne early this season virtually disbanded its team for want of players.

Russell Hi Ties Athens Team, 7 to 7

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

In a tussle fraught with penalties, squabbling and misdemeanors of every description an underdog Russell High grid machine fought a good Athens High eleven to a 7-7 dogfall at East Point last night to rip asunder the Athenian hopes for an N. G. I. C. title this year, since they were previously deadlocked 20-20 by Mr. Kennerly and company of Decatur High.

Athens swept into a first quarter lead when they drove from their own 45-yard line to the Russell 2. Here the East Point forward wall held, but Kidd, Athens' guard, broke through to partially block Davis' punt. The ball bounded into the arms of Athens' Fullback Miller on the 10, and he raced it over for the score. McWhorter's placekick split the uprights for the seventh point.

In the second quarter Russell, stopped cold on the ground, took to the air lanes to push over a score. From midfield Dodd passed to Morris for 17, Bowen lateraled to Davis for 10, and after a line smash gained 6 more Bowen flipped one to Davis, who caught it beautifully on the 5 and scampered to pay dirt. Davis converted with a perfect placement and the count was knotted.

After the half the opposing lines battled tooth and fang to repulse every threat. The Athenian attack via the ground route was potent in midfield, but always bogged down near the goal line. Russell passes clicked at times, but lack of ground power kept them away from doing much knocking at touchdown's door.

Red McWhorter and J. P. Miller led a hard running Athens offensive, while Jack Davis, Bobby Bowen and a lad named Ledbetter stood out in the Russell attack.

CITADEL MAULS PETRELS, 26 TO 8

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 11. (UP)—The Citadel took an early lead today to defeat Oglethorpe, 26 to 8.

In the first four minutes the Bulldogs shoved over their first touchdown with Edwards carrying the ball. In the second quarter Edwards passed 30 yards to David, who went over the goal line.

Oglethorpe scored in the third quarter when George ran 60 yards for a touchdown, but Citadel came back to score another, Foster passing to Maxwell over the goal.

In the fourth period, Oglethorpe scored a safety but Citadel nullified it with another touchdown.

N. Y. U. Scores Early To Beat Colgate, 13-7

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—New York University's football forces shoved over two quick touchdowns in the first quarter today and then fought off Colgate's deception and power through the last half to upset the Raiders, 13-7, before an Armistice Day crowd of 25,000 in Yankee Stadium, for the Violets' first major victory of the season.

WAVE FAVORED OVER BULLDOGS

Bankers, is heavily favored to take the Bulldogs into camp by a comfortable margin. Gamboleers in this city of rare old beauty and antique manufacturers are giving Georgia two touchdowns and then dodging the law for stealing.

But stranger things have happened than a Bulldog victory. With Mims tossing aerial bombs into the hands of Alex McCaskill, Knox Eldredge, Carroll Thomas and Vassa Cate, the Bulldogs are a very definite threat.

The weather is cloudy and, should rain come, the Bulldogs will find themselves at even more disadvantage since they are depending mainly on passing for their attack.

Bronco Brunner and Buddy Banker, two of the ace Tulane backs, were released from the hospital this afternoon and will likely start the game for the Wave. Coach Red Dawson said he didn't expect either to play very much.

TAILBACK DOUBTFUL.

Coach Hunt has pretty definitely decided on his opening eleven with the exception of a tailback. He said he would start the one he dreams about tonight.

Either Mims, Harry Stevens or Earl Hise will get the call and it is considered Stevens has the inside track because of his superior punting ability.

BULLDOG SUPPORTERS.

A large group of Georgia supporters are here for the battle, including Mrs. Joel Hunt, Dr. and Mrs. Marion Hubert, Professor Doug Jeter and Professor and Mrs. W. O. Payne.

ALERT CHOCTAWS WIN OVER BEARS IN GRID THRILLER

Mercer Again Returns Opening Kickoff for Touchdown.

MACON, Ga., Nov. 12.—(AP)—An alert, skillful and hard-tackling team from Mississippi College counted touchdowns in every period and outscored Mercer, 26 to 21, today.

For the third successive week the Bears carried the opening kickoff the length of the field for a touchdown, Sophomore Art Pledger scoring on a short line plunge and adding the extra point.

Taking advantage of a short kick from the Mercer goal line, the invading Choctaws went 34 yards to the typing point with Bob Majure going over on fourth down. Captain Joel Hitt placed the extra point.

A blocked kick set up the winners' second touchdown a few moments later, Joe Hennington bolting over the last chalk line. The try for point failed and the half ended that way.

was still there, although it looked a bit weak in the knees as do his tackles.

"What sort of plans have you got for tomorrow?"

"We plan to have 11 men," he said, "even if one of them has never been on the varsity squad before. We'll line up in the usual manner and the center will snap the ball—I hope. Beyond that we haven't gone," he said, laughing a laugh which was as hollow as a politician's promise.

The Georgia Techs came on to practice. Their position today is about that of substitute to the underdog. They are too far down in the betting to be merely an underdog.

Nevertheless, the public, having seen Mr. Alexander's cripples rise phoenix-like from the arnica and bandages, have bought out all the reserved seats and those who buy today will sit down at the goal lines or behind them.

HO! HO! HO! HA! HA! HA!

It was just after noon yesterday that the clerk out at that hotel where Ponce de Leon and Peachtree meet, had a call from an excited guest.

"There is a gentleman having hysterics in a room next to mine," he said.

"That's the second report we've had on that, sir," said the clerk. "It isn't hysterics. It's just Mr. Frank Thomas, the Alabama coach, about to laugh himself to death."

And that was a fact. You never saw such an unfeeling person as Mr. Frank Thomas, the coach of the Crimson Crushers.

"Gee," he said, "wiping his eyes, "can you imagine Alex pulling that on me? Don't I know he has tried to do that to me before. In fact, he has done it." Whereupon Mr. Thomas went off into another paroxysm of laughter.

"I have to laugh," he said, "at the idea I'd fall for that old trick. Why, don't I know what will happen? Those freshmen will be lined up there slapping each player on the back and the Techs will play like wildcats. They always do. It's the funniest thing of the season. Ho! Ho! Ho!" laughed Mr. Thomas.

"But they are hurt," said the reporter, who had just visited Mr. Alexander's training quarters.

"Don't make me laugh," said Mr. Thomas, "You make my appendix operation adhesions pull something awful."

SOMETHING OF ALABAMA.

Frank Thomas, one of the better coaches in the game, has one of the better teams. It has lost only to Tennessee, a fate which has met a lot of people.

"We needed Billy Slemmons," he said. "He is the best running halfback we had and that's been one of our weaknesses this year. He is ready to play a little Saturday, but his ankle still is bad. I think if he had not got hurt in the Southern California game we'd have been a much better offensive team."

"You know," he continued, "I really am worried about the Tech game. I know we are doped to win and I know we would be without Alex's injured men. I discount that a lot. I know that Alex is trouble every year. We rarely have won an easy game from Tech."

Alabama rests after today's game until the contest with the Commodores on Thanksgiving Day. And there's another game which is putting gray hairs in Coach Thomas' thatch.

THE COMMODORES AND VOLS.

Now and then Mr. Ray Morrison, violating Rule I., Section II, of the coaching code, comes out of a pair of verbal flat feet and admits his team is going to win.

He twice has done such a thing. Once he got a tie. Once a victory.

Yesterday he said his team was ready, all fit, and that it would defeat the favored University of Tennessee eleven. It is smart psychology. He may do just that. If so, he will have an excellent chance to win from Alabama.

CRIPPLED JACKETS, TIDE ATTRACT 26,000

started against Tulane last Saturday—the eleven that held the Greenies to two first downs, both coming in the fourth period.

The chunky little Alabama mentor said his squad was in good shape physically and mentally. Every player is in perfect condition.

The Crimson Tide probably carries fewer men than any eleven in the conference with the exception of Sewanee. Twenty-eight men made the trip here.

CLIMAX RUNNER.

The football experts say Alabama would be a great team instead of an exceptionally good one if it had a climax runner—one who works on the same principles as do George Cafego or Bronco Brunner. The Tide's nearest approach to this type back is Billy Slemons, who has been out with injuries most of the season. Slemons may be what the Red Elephants need to spark their potentially powerful attack.

Charlie Boswell, sub left half, was running first string yesterday in signal drills and this would indicate he will play much in the place of the great Herschel Mosley. Alabama's splendid passer and kicker. Mosley is small (he weighs about 160 or 165) and not rugged enough to go the full distance. He is an elusive runner.

Coach Thomas would not comment on the outcome of the game. His players may sometimes take the Jackets lightly, but never he. He fears the Old Man of the Flats and if the Old Man of the Flats had his squad at full strength he might have worked out a program which would provide the visitors a busy and interesting afternoon.

DRILL LIGHTLY.

Both squads drilled lightly on Grant field yesterday. The Tide was first, passing, punting and running signals. Mosley and Zivich did most of the kicking and Mosley, Boswell and Zivich did the passing. The 'Bama line is by far the biggest seen on Grant field this year.

EAGLES WIN, 12-7.

JEFFERSON CITY, Tenn., Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Carson-Newman Eagles fought their way into the upper bracket of the Smoky Mountain conference today by defeating Cumberland, 12 to 7, already rejected a proposal to play Santa Clara New Year's Day.

"This has been a long, hard year for us. Should we go through undefeated—and that's a real long shot—the boys will have had enough football.

"You know, we're an educational institution down there at Duke. We do not exist merely for football. Our boys have their studies and they're right hard. We're interested in seeing them get good grades. By the time the season is over they have a lot to make up."

NEW EASTERN AIR ROUTE TO START

Tallahassee-Memphis Service To Begin 'Immediately.'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(UP) Captain Edward V. Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Airlines, said today that service would be "immediately inaugurated" between Tallahassee, Fla., and Memphis, Tennessee.

Public protest against the proposed transfer of Eastern's rights to the Tallahassee-Memphis portion of Route 40 to Delta Airlines led directors of his organization to approve the service, Rickenbacker said. Applications before the Civil Aeronautics Authority for the transfer will be withdrawn, he said.

"The service will also link Montgomery, Dothan, Sheffield, Tuscumbia and Florence, Ala., with the northern and southern points in accordance with undertakings expressed in our air mail contracts," he said.

Reasoning Between Children and Parents Should Be a Fair Swap

If Muscles Are Firm, The Figure Stays Young

By Ida Jean Kain.

When you sit most of the time, your figure inevitably acquires a "settled look" that has nothing to do with age. When you analyze it, this settling down of the figure can be blamed entirely on lazy muscles in the areas of the waist, abdomen, hips and bust, which invite the accumulation of fat.

You would be surprised at the small amount of exercise required to keep these important muscles animated and on the job. You may find it easier to stay with your slimming program if you limit yourself to three or four really effective exercises—but do them every day.

Here is an exercise that is a comfortable version of the cartwheel, but which gets results with those muscles about the midriff:

Position: Full length on the floor, with the ankles locked. Support the weight on the lower foot and the corresponding hand. Have the arm straight, and the other hand flung back and up.

Movement: Keeping the body straight and the feet together, turn until you can transfer the weight to the other hand. Don't let your body sag as you turn over, and keep going.

When you catch your breath, here's another, and a streamlining exercise if ever there was one! It doesn't miss a muscle.

Position: Face down, on the floor but with weight supported on hands and toes. Have arms and legs straight.

Movement: "Walk" up to the hands, continuing to keep arms and knees straight. Then "walk" back until you are again full length, face down, weight on toes and hands.

And now for the hips.

If you will do these or similar exercises every day, you can keep your muscles firm and your figure will stay young indefinitely.

A Simple Plan To Educate Yourself

"What's her background?" That's what every new acquaintance wonders about you. But you don't have to go to college to get background—the culture that wins friends and good jobs. You can acquire it at home.

Your library, your newspaper, your radio can be your college. Use them to give yourself confidence with educated people.

Perhaps you've recently met a doctor, a writer, an artist. Fascinating to explore their fields of knowledge with popular outline books on medicine, literature and art.

By reading such books a little while each day you can get a broad knowledge of many subjects as background for talk.

Share the interest, the pleasures of cultivated people. Listen to two or three good concerts on your radio each week. Read magazine and newspaper reviews of new plays, fine moving pictures.

Then you won't be left out while people discuss differences between such composers as Brahms and Chopin, the new Katherine Cornell play, American versus foreign films.

Do you have a special ambition, a neglected talent? Remember that one university president had to stop school at the eighth grade. Nothing you can't accomplish with self-education!

Our 40-page booklet, Suppose You Haven't Gone to College, outlines a program you can follow in your spare time. Lists best books on many subjects. Tells how to use libraries, newspaper, radio, movies to get on equal terms with college people.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, SUPPOSE YOU HAVEN'T GONE TO COLLEGE, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Home Life Isn't What It Used To Be

By Caroline Chatfield.

Wonder if there has ever been a time in the world's history when parents had so many difficulties in rearing their daughters? To begin with, homelife isn't what it used to be. With fathers going out to business before day and returning after dark, with the children at school and with mama released from the kitchen and turned out on the town, there are precious few hours of 24 when the family is together. At the evening meal, perhaps, but this is a short time at best. On school nights the children have home work, on free nights they are racing through dinner to get to the movies, and parents have other irons in fires that are not home-fires.

But this isn't the worst of it. Discipline is taboo in the modern family setup. Mother learns at clubs and parent-teacher meetings that her children need her guidance but not her goading. Father is so engrossed in his business that he must leave those matters largely in mother's hands. The children are breathing revolt in the air. It doesn't take them long to learn that parents are not gods but frail human beings: that children are entitled to do their thinking, lead their own lives, go their own gaits.

Not all parents are cagey enough to keep the halters on the heads of young hopefuls with homelife at the lowest ebb, with respect for authority and reverence for age at the zero hour. Many parents are puzzled and addled and they are appealing for advice of any that claim to know the answer.

Who doesn't pity the poor parents who were brought up in the school of mama-knows-best, papa-pays-the-bills; therefore what-they-say-must-go, but straightway find themselves confronted with a civil war when they try to put that policy over on their young rebels? That's "old stuff" snort the children who are going to the movies and gulping the glamour of the silver screen, racing about in automobiles, dancing all night 'till the broad daylight and ending up for hotdogs at a roadhouse.

Perhaps it is old stuff but there is some more old stuff that never goes out of style. Win the affection and the confidence of child, dog, cat or canary and they will all eat out of your hand, accept your chastening, and come to you for comfort when they are in trouble.

There is just one way for mother to win a girl's confidence and affection: It's by showing herself sympathetic with the child's pleasure, cooperating with the young thing in her social life, getting her girlish viewpoint and helping her to get a start with the boys, a safe and sane start.

Naturally there will be occasional tempests in teapots when Mary asks permission to do some outlandish thing that mother cannot grant. There will be times when Mary slams the door, puts her head under her pillow, weeps and wails that she's never had a happy day in her life. There will be times when the air is tense and mother tells dad she's at her wit's end with Mary. This is all part and parcel of bringing up children.

However, the tempests in teapots don't amount to much in the long run for when Mary has got her fit and the momentary disappointment is past, Mary remembers that mother has always been her best friend, anxious for her to have all the fun she could and when mother has said no there must have been a good reason. And Mary will be amenable to reason.

MY DAY Smoke of Political Battle Clears Away

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—As the smoke of the political battle clears away, particularly in my own state, there are one or two things which give me a tremendous sense of thankfulness. Had the voters given Senator Wagner a grudging indorsement, I should have felt sad, for few people have more constructive legislation to their credit. Though you may want to change items here and there, it seems to me no matter which party you belong to, there must be a feeling that Senator Wagner served unselfishly the causes in which he believed. Mrs. O'Day had given, as far as it lay in her power as a new member of congress, unselfish service of the same type, and it is gratifying to find that she is also appreciated.

It is difficult, though, to understand some of the things which happened. For instance, in California, the amendment for which Mr. Downey stood was voted down, but Mr. Downey was elected. In North Dakota, the amendment for a $40 pension was passed, but its author was defeated.

There are probably reasons which people on the spot could give for such apparent inconsistencies, but I confess at long range they are a bit difficult to understand. The longer I watch politics, the more convinced I am that in the long run, it is sincerity of purpose which the voters feel and trust. There are times when this, of course, does not completely explain a situation—as when some prejudice holds sway temporarily over the people, and a number of them act under the impulse of that prejudice, rather than as a result of their true thinking. However, I feel this is, as a rule, only a temporary thing with us. Prejudices are always the result of fears, and so far we have usually discovered that our fears were just a bogey in the dark, which we dreaded as children and which faded away in the light of better understanding and knowledge.

We have all of us enjoyed this beautiful weather. My husband has driven every one of us to see what is now really a finished house. Of course, he will do no furnishing until spring, but most of us are singing little paeans of joy, because for once there are really a number of things which he will find useful as Christmas and birthday presents.

My mother-in-law has had one or two old friends staying with her. Last evening, Countess Gleichen, whom she has known since she was a little girl, arrived for a visit. As a young woman, the countess was for some years a lady-in-waiting at Buckingham Palace. She came over here to visit her friends, their excellencies, the Governor General of Canada and Lady Tweedsmuir. She tells me that in Canada the women's institutes, which are the counterpart of our farm women's organizations, are growing very much in strength, and that they are making every effort to attend the conference of the rural women of the world, in London, next spring.

Hippocrates Was a Wise Old Doctor

By Dr. William Brady.

The Father of Medicine had his favorite prescription for cough, too. While it may not have been so good as mine, I'm willing to concede that for his time. Hippocrates was a wise old doctor. The medicine he prescribed for cough was called hydromel. Like Fool Proof Cough Medicine it was simple, homely and quite harmless in any case. Here's the way to make hydromel:

Take of honey, one teacupful, of water, three teacupfuls. Boil them together, and there you are. Dose: A swallow or two every little while.

Hippocrates said: "Hydromel is moderately diuretic: it softens the lungs, is moderately nourishing, expectorant, laxative, and alleviates a cough; it lubricates the sputum."

Even Ol' Doc Galen who considered his medical colleagues ignorant had a favorable word for Hippocrates' hydromel (perhaps because Hippocrates had been dead 500 years or so). Said Galen "hydromel clears out the air passages, and thus promotes expectoration. When sputa are thick and viscid it cuts and thins them."

Now, although I haven't tried it, I can conceive of no reason why one should not mix some honey in the batch of Fool Proof Cough Medicine and so gain the advantage of having Hippocrates, Galen and Brady standing around the bed stroking our whiskers and watching for the crisis or something.

Singers and speakers, many amateurs and professionals have used for years an agreeable yet efficacious astringent gargle originated by Joseph W. England, pharmacist in Philadelphia hospital. It is prepared by dissolving 2 drams (2 teaspoonfuls) of potassium chlorate in four ounces of boiling water, which stands cooling while 1 dram (teaspoonful) of alum is dissolved in 2 1-2 ounces of stronger rose water, to which are then added in the order named one-half ounce (tablespoonful) of glycerin, one-half ounce of plain syrup or honey (tablespoonful) and finally three drams (3 teaspoonfuls) of fluidextract or eucalyptus rostrata (red gum). Shake this ruby-red liquid up and add it to the reserved portion. The product should be a clear ruby-red liquor of agreeable odor and tastes. For use, add a tablespoonful of it to an equal quantity of water and gargle. Gargle once or twice within the half hour before singing or speaking. Or use it every few hours for relief of mild sore throat.

If the druggist cannot supply fluidextract of eucalyptus rostrata (red gum), fluidextract of kino may be substitute in the formula, using two drams (two teaspoonfuls) of it instead of three drams of red gum.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Please Forgive Us.

Regret your surrender to spelling iodine with final e. Expect you will soon make up your mind whether to spell it mucus or phosphorous—so far you seem fickle about it. C. W. H.

Answer—not so fickle as helpless—proofreaders, typographers, stenographers and editors have something to say about how or whether I shall spell my words. I gave up iodin mainly because a lot of laymen think iodin is something different from the iodine they have always known. Mucus is the noun; mucous the adjective, of course. Phorphorus is correct; no such word as phosphorous.

New Wallpaper For Colonial Homes

By Jean Schaffer.

Period furniture is, of course, nothing new—but what of period wallpaper?

The world is becoming more and more appreciative of the worth-while things of life and history, and is commemorating these happenings in ways that are lasting.

I need not go into the restoration of colonial Williamsburg in Virginia, undertaken by Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as an endeavor to restore accurately and to preserve for all time the most significant portions of an historic and important city of America's colonial period, and dedicated to the hope and purpose "that the future may learn from the past," to use the words of Mr. Rockefeller.

Now this important historical event has been commemorated in wallpaper. These reproductions fit beautifully into colonial houses.

Though it was known that wallpapers were used in Williamsburg in the eighteenth century, none of the original papers came to light in the first work of the restoration, so that when the restored buildings were furnished it was possible to use papers of the period only, and not the actual patterns that were originally on the walls. Subsequent research and restoration has now brought to light small fragments of some of the original wallpapers, and it is from such fragments that the first approved reproductions have been made.

And it is these reproductions which add the final finishing touch to the interior of a colonial home. To an eighteenth century house they will lend an added note of authenticity and for an apartment they will bridge a gap of 200 years to make Chippendale chairs and Wedgwood Queen's ware at home in modern architecture.

Of Interest to Women

Q. How can I keep my inlaid linoleum looking like new?

A. After cleaning with mild soap suds and warm water, apply a thin coat of wax.

Q. Is a five-year-old child too young to be taught to keep his finger nails clean?

Q. How can I remove calloused spots from my feet?

A. Rub them with pumice stone.

Q. What gifts are suitable for the second wedding anniversary?

A. Straw baskets, serving tray, beverage sets or wicker furniture.

Lombard Crashes Set Where Gable Tap-Dances

By Sheilah Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 11.—Shirley Temple makes her first sponsored radio appearance on Christmas Day for the nice little sum of $10,000. . . . Robert Taylor keeps open house for the boys and girls attending his old college at Pomona. The chief question they ask him is, "How can I become successful?" "Be nonchalant," Bob advises them. I wonder. . . . Gary Cooper, now vacationing from Hollywood, is so terrified of something happening to his beloved baby daughter that not only is his estate here covered with guards, but the two nurses who serve little Maria are equipped with guns. . . . Henry Fonda, halted in his car by a stop signal on Sunset Boulevard, was accosted by a girl, who exclaimed ecstatically, "Oh, it's wonderful to see you. May I drive with you to the next stop?" "All right," said Henry. "By the way, what is your name?" queried the maiden when the actor let her off.

William Powell's long absence from picture-making has cost Metro an additional lot of dollars—in insurance on "Asta" with Lloyds, of London. (The "Thin Man" pictures would lose a great deal of appeal minus the attractive canine.) Now that Bill has recovered his health and settled his contract difficulties with the studio, the way is clear for a happy film reunion with Myrna Loy as Mrs. Nick Charles, who, as you know, will be a mother in the next "Thin Man" picture. . . . Rosalind Russell says she is not going to marry Judge Clarke, of the local superior court. . . . Seventeen-year-old Nancy Kelly brings her mother on all her dates. And the boys are mad.

Ronald Colman and his bride will continue their honeymoon in England. . . . Lee Russell is helping Herbert Marshall with the tedium of reading plays for a Broadway stage appearance. . . . "Zaza" was tried out in San Francisco and went over very well, but the Hays office still finds the epic of the '90's, starring Claudette Colbert, "too naughty," and the cutting scissors are on the job again.

Cary Grant is expecting Phyllis Brooks to meet him in New York when he returns within a few days from England, and Hollywood is expecting they will get married in that city. On the other side of this "expecting" is the director of the latest "Charlie Chan," who expects Miss Brooks to stay in the studio and finish her part in this picture.

Carole Lombard is the only outsider who can crash the set of "Idiot's Delight," where the embarrassed Mr. Gable is tap-dancing for dear old Metro. By the way, what has happened to Clark's "imminent" divorce from his long-estranged wife? . . . Alan Mowbray's successful personal appearance tour has upped his screen salary by $500 a week. . . . All of Edward Everett Horton's possessions—including his sixteen-acre estate, "Belly Acres"—have been deed to his mother. A nice gesture. . . . Maureen O'Sullivan and Husband Johnny Farrow were shopping on Olvers street when they were stopped by a man who said he was a talent scout. "I'd like to put you in pictures," he told Maureen. "But I am," she replied—and gave her name. "But of course," apologized the T. S. "You're the little French actress who made such a hit in 'The Rage of Paris!'"

Bridge Authority Explains Form of "Reverse" Bidding

By Harold Sharpsteen.

In choosing one of two biddable four-card suits to name first, many players stick to that old rule of preference . . . length first . . . rank second . . . strength third . . . or simpler still, bid quantity before quality.

More important consideration in selecting the proper suit to open is the factor of safety and the principle of economy which often prompts bidder to reverse the normal or natural order of suit openings, by bidding the higher-ranking of two suits on the second round.

REVERSE METHOD.

(1) S—A-Q-8-3
H—A-K-J-2
D—7-2
C—9-4-3

(2) S—A-Q-8-3
H—7-2
D—A-K-J-6
C—9-4-3

(3) S—A-Q-8-3
H—7-2
C—A-K-J-2

The so-called "natural" opening in all three examples is one spade.

(1) The bid is one spade. Nothing is to be gained by opening one heart, so the higher-ranking of two suits, equal in length, is the proper preference.

ADDED STRENGTH SHOWN.

(2) Again the "natural" opening is one spade yet there are two sound reasons for bidding diamonds first. The bid of a higher-ranking suit on the second round logically infers added high-card strength and there is always that possibility of partner first responding in heart, which might permit opener to bid spades at the one level.

PRINCIPLE OF ECONOMY.

(3 As a matter of simple economy, clubs should be named first . . . reversing the natural method of preferring the higher-ranking suit. If partner responds in hearts or diamonds, opener's spade suit can be shown at the one-odd level.

Had declarer named spades first, partner, to show hearts or diamonds, is required to go to the two-odd level, while declarer, on his rebid, to show clubs is forced to the dangerous level of three-odd with a four-card suit.

'Til tomorrow . . .

Lady's Diary For One Week

By ELIZABETH BOYKIN.

Monday—I'm not a New Englander born and bred—anything but as a matter of fact. But one of my best friends, a former magazine editor, is a dyed-in-the-wool Bostonian. Underneath that drab and sturdy exterior there lurks as surreptitious a sense of humor as I've ever encountered. She's a woman of 60 and yet she manages to be spontaneous and gay without trying to domineer or dwell too much in the past. She spent the night with us recently and carried the best family damask home with her to darn. What a friend! Told me about some impudent informal mats and napkins she's just made her granddaughter to take away to college . . . checked gingham they are with applique designs of barnyard animals.

Tuesday.—How does the idea of fur furniture strike you? Well, I felt the same way! But there they were—chests and cupboards covered with long white fur. A more conservative piece was covered in leopard.

Wednesday. — A slip-covered wall was another new one on me. The fabric is laced to the molding and base board. Not a bad idea at that.

Thursday.—We had a Mexican supper tonight with home-made chili and home-made hot tamales . . . finished off with avacado and lettuce salad, then pineapple sprinkled with fresh coconut. Anybody want my tamale recipe? (Or rather my sister-in-law's—she gave it to me.) I'll send it on request.

Friday.—Saw the most stunning made-over bed—an old frame with footboard removed and the headboard upholstered in pastel plaid cotton taffeta and edged in mirror. Spread was of the same plaid. Speaking of mirror reminds me—a bleached floor at a recent exhibit had a mirror "neckline" of small inlaid rectangles of mirror running around like a border.

Saturday.—The most dangerous-looking girl I know is the most domestic member of our crowd. A tall, slender blonde she is who once laughed out of billboards and magazine covers from coast to coast (as a model), she's settled down to a suburban life and loves it. Adores her husband, does all her own work, knows how to make the best cake in her end of town and is a positive genius when it comes to canning and preserving. Their living room is pine paneled with a huge fireplace at one end and delightful maple furniture, pewter and hooked rugs in friendly arrangement.

Sunday.—My little son isn't doing me very proud at church these fall Sundays. I've been trying to initiate him into the idea, but he always seems to be just one squirm ahead of me. So I usually give up and take him home before the service is over. Well, I still believe in taking them young. In the afternoon various friends collected unexpectedly around our coffee pot—among them a young German journalist who just arrived yesterday from the London and Berlin "fronts." A disarmingly pleasant young man for all his Hitlerism. I guess all Germans aren't boches now any more than in 1914.

Girl Scout Troop No. 37 Invests Members

Girl Scout Troop No. 37 at Emory celebrated Girl Scout Week, giving a party for their mothers on Wednesday at their troop house, when 12 new Scouts, Eleanor Cannon, Betty Mackay, Jeanne Cox, Miriam Laughlin, Doris Goree, Margaret Duckworth, Frances Brannan, Martha Ann Johnson, Edith Lively, Beverly Nixon, Dorothy Quillian and Rachel Stubbs were invested.

A highlight of the occasion was an informal talk by Mrs. Wright Bryan, commissioner of Atlanta, on "Scouting in Atlanta During the Past 16 Years." Twenty-six registrations from troop committee members and Scouts were received and a gift of $2 was voted for the Community Chest. Twenty-one mothers and 32 Scouts and all members of the troop committee were present. Reception and Luncheon Honor Visiting Bankers and Wives

Visiting bankers here for a meeting of the board of directors of the sixth district Federal Reserve Bank, and their wives, were tendered a reception last evening in the spacious reception rooms of the newly constructed and redecorated reception rooms of the Federal Reserve Bank.

The color motif of yellow and white predominated in the elaborate decorations arranged throughout the receptions rooms. Urns of immense golden and white chrysanthemums were arranged on bookcases, consoles and tables. The corners of the room were banked with fern plants and palms. In the dining room the buffet tables were adorned by plateaux of richly tinted fruits and at intervals silver candelabra held gleaming white tapers.

Two orchestras furnished music throughout the reception hours.

The following prominent bank officials formed the receiving line and greeted the guests upon their arrival: Frank Neely, of Atlanta; Governor M. S. Eccles, of Washington, D. C.; Ronald Ransom, of Washington, D. C., formerly of Atlanta; M. S. Szymczak, of Washington, D. C.; Chester Davis, of Washington, D. C.; Oscar Newton, of Atlanta; Robert S. Motorman Throws Bandit From Car

Despite a knife against his throat and a threat against his life, W. S. Monk, 45, McDaniel street car motorman, fought with a young negro bandit and threw him from the car at the end of the line last night. The bandit fled.

Detectives R. R. Bradford and J. H. Parham said Monk told them he had "just turned the trolley pole around and switched on the lights," preparatory to heading back to town, when a negro, ginger colored, about 21, and wearing overalls, boarded the car. He was the only passenger.

"I went to collect his fare," Monk said. "Instead of paying, he jumped up, drew a knife and held it at my throat. He said, 'Give me what you've got or I'll kill you.'"

She'll Celebrate Birthday Willed By Stevenson

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Mrs. W. Bourke Cockran, widow of former United States Representative Cochran, will celebrate on Sunday the birthday which Robert Louis Stevenson deeded to her 47 years ago because her own birthday fell on Christmas.

One of her guests will be Mrs. Salisbury Field, of Santa Barbara, Cal., stepdaughter of Stevenson.

The author's deed provided that Mrs. Cockran should celebrate his birthday by "the sporting of fine raiment, eating of rich meats and receipt of gifts, compliments and copies of verse."

He also stipulated that, if Mrs. Cockran did not celebrate in the prescribed manner, "all the rights and privileges were to revert to the President of the United States."

Mrs. Cockran, arranging her dinner, said today she was taking care that nothing like that should happen.

MUNICIPAL BONDS ARE RATED HIGHER

Issues Are Given Standard of 'AA' as Result of Sounder Financing.

Atlanta's municipal bonds again have been given top rating by "Moody's," financial authority, it was announced yesterday.

The rating was advanced from "A" to "AA" because of the sounder financial condition of the city brought about by the strict budget law adopted by the city soon after Mayor Hartsfield took office.

Atlanta lost the "AA" rating several years ago, when a floating deficit of more than $1,000,000 was piling up and "certificates" had been issued against bonds to provide money for relief purposes during the depression.

Bond houses in Atlanta were notified of the new excellent rating yesterday.

Additional Parties Honor Miss Craft

Additional parties are being planned daily in compliment to Miss Eleanor Hayden Craft, whose marriage to William P. Love Jr. will be an interesting event of December 8. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cunningham will be hosts at a buffet supper at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue in honor of the bridal couple on November 22.

A group of friends will give a tea in Miss Craft's honor on November 30 at the home of Mrs. Howard Canfield on North Decatur road. Mrs. J. W. Stribling has planned a tea to be given on December 7 at her home on Woodward Way, when she will invite a group of friends to meet the lovely bride-elect.

24 of Tech Wrecks Go on the Loose --So Loose Only 6 Complete Course

Bold Bambinos Brave Bucking Bolts in Bombastic Brandishment of Breakneck, Boyish Brashness— Bask in Bliss or Blisters.

By LEE FUHRMAN.

It sounded and looked like the Battle of Atlanta, with cannon-like noises punctuating the night and smoke rolling across the gridiron of old Grant field.

But it was a contest of a different sort—the famous "ramblin' wreck" competition at Georgia Tech, held each year on the eve of a big football game and aimed to bring to life and floodlight the campus' best—or rather, worst—jallopies.

So motors sputttered or snorted, depending on their age and inclination, while smoke poured from exhaust pipes and 1,200 persons in the stands, assembled for the "ramblin' wreck" parade and the rally that followed, greeted with cheers the 24 entrants on the track.

But of the 24, only six survived. And of the six, only three "wrecks" came through the gruelling tests of two times around the track under their own power.

For the fourth straight year, the entry of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity won first honors, this year a silver cup, presented by Houston Edwards, former Tech football player, now manager of the Fox theater.

Besides the stamina of Pi Kappa Phi's flivver, the judges liked the cleverness of the extensions built on the car, one projecting forward and bearing a student dressed in convict stripes, and another jutting rearward, presenting two students as honeymooners.

Second prize of a brass-plated spittoon, fitten for the best of frat houses, went to Pi Kappa Tau, for its car which always seemed to fall apart—but which was always salvaged in the nick of time by a nimble gentleman who followed with a wheelbarrow.

Delta Tau Delta's car, decorated to look like a hillbilly cabin, and with three night-shirted hillbillies (shotguns and whiskers) standing guard, won third prize of various merchandise from local storekeepers.

Cheers, songs and an old-fashioned football rally, with the theme "Beat Alabama," ended the festivities.

'PEACE' ASSEMBLY URGED BY BRITON

Impending Pacts Only Postpone Conflict, George Says.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—David Lloyd George, Britain's World War prime minister, said tonight that only an "assembly of nations" willing to work without reference to "past experiments or present ideologies" could make world peace possible.

"Where," he asked, "is the statesman who will take his project in hand and will and can press it through?"

In a speech prepared for broadcast to this country from London as part of a symposium arranged by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Lloyd George said that the negotiation of pacts to "propitiate the dictators" could do no more than postpone "an ultimate conflict."

BARRETT FUNERAL SLATED IN ATHENS

Member of University Faculty Succumbs Unexpectedly.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Funeral services for Dupree Barrett, 41, a member of the University of Georgia faculty, who died last night, will be held in the First Christian church here Sunday afternoon.

Members of the faculty and of the extension service forestry department with which he was connected for 20 years will act as honorary pallbearers.

Dupree, a native of Athens and a 1921 graduate of the University College of Agriculture, died unexpectedly.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. T. H. Barrett, of Athens; five sisters, Mrs. E. B. Pitman, of Washington; Miss May Barrett, of Miami; Mrs. G. O. Gunter and Mrs. Tom Burleigh, of Gulfport, Miss., and Mrs. M. G. Wingate, of Immokalee, Fla.; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Edna Barrett, of Atlanta, and two aunts, Mrs. Sallie Ramsey, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Hettie Comer, of Blakely.

Barrett lived with his mother. He was not married.

Barrett was an enthusiastic crusader against forest fires, and frequently, in his trips throughout the state, if he saw a fire, he would stop and fight it alone, or join others who were seeking to put it out. He was also active in reforestation work. His last annual report showed that during the last 10 years approximately 80,000 acres had been reforested under his supervision.

A strong advocate of demonstration forests, he established numerous small areas on which pines were grown. On these he showed that slash and loblolly pines could be grown from seedlings to 30-foot trees in 10 years.

He was also a co-author of a book entitled "Forestry Management in Georgia."

KEMAL ATATURK'S SUCCESSOR NAMED

ANKARA, Turkey, Nov. 11—(AP) Turkey's veteran foreign minister, Tevfik Rustu Aras, was dropped tonight when General Ismet Inonu took office as president of Turkey pledged to carry out the work of his friend, the late Kemal Ataturk.

The reshuffle eliminated Aras, who for 13 years has guided Turkish foreign policy during the period which saw Turkey emerge from the ruins of the Ottoman empire to become a modern power.

Minister of Justice Sukru Sarocoglu succeeded him. Other cabinet posts were left unchanged except the home ministry where Sukru Kaya was succeeded by former Minister of Public Health Refik Saydam to serve under Inonu.

Bill and Jere Find Alice and Her Captors Many Miles From Camp

By DENVER BARDWELL.

INSTALLMENT XXIX.

He spurred his pony down the creek. One of his emigrant companions cried out suddenly and pointed back up the little valley. A horseman came there, running his mount at breakneck speed, shouting words at the group of riders that could not be understood over the intervening distance.

Jere Boone pulled around, glanced once at the oncoming stranger, lifted his rifle over his head in a waving signal and began laughing in a great change from his usual taciturn nature. It was a complete puzzle to his companions. The lone rider of the plains came close enough then for his racing words to be understood.

"I peeped at you over the ridge until I made plum sartain who you was, you young shut-mouthed, squint-eyed fox!" He let out a whoop and drew up his hard-ridden pony before the astonished emigrants and happily laughing Jere Boone, reached a hand to wring Boone's hand and then slapped his back while he went on: "I never seen a better sight for sore eyes, younker, nor never had such a whoppingest big surprise. Couldn't believe my eyes. What'n tarnation you doin' way out here?" he looked quizzically at Boone's friends.

"Biff Sanderson!" Boone cried. "You sure never come along when you was needed like now. These here pilgrims are back-easters wagoning 'crost to California. I got our wagon with their big outfit down at the South Platte crossing yonder."

He hurriedly sketched in the situation for his partner. Before he had well finished, Sanderson was grunting and showing that he wanted to tell something. He got to say it at last.

"That all backs up what I saw," he said. "I was acoming along the South Platte trail when I seen them smoke signals right 'round the hills ahead o' me. I slipt crost the river and come ahellin' in a circle over to this trail, aimin' to get 'round and look for sign o' pilgrims an' warn 'em. I followed the hollers 'crost the prairie and seen you, but kept outa sight ontil I was sartain who you was. Now let's git on after that gal an' git back in time to give the sneakin' Oglahs plenty hell."

Sanderson was one of those strangely weathered, long, lean men of the plains who had passed far beyond the age of youth, but whose age was an indeterminate guess anywhere from 40 to 60. His dark brown beard and long hair were tinged with gray, his long-fingered hands were callousedwith hard work and exposure, his blue eyes showed through narrowly squinted slits, the squint having become habitual against the winds of winter and the glaring prairie sun of summer.

Boone turned to Harold Manning and the other men, saying, "With Biff Sanderson along to help me, I can make quicker time finding Miss Alice if you fellers want to run in to the camp. You're pretty tuckered out, Manning. Maybe——"

"If you think I'd give up hunting for Alice now, Boone, you're crazy!" Manning burst out, his old resentment flaring up. "We've lost enough time. I'll stick in this saddle and ride far's you do till we find her."

The other two men readily agreed to return to camp, anxiety for their families uppermost in their minds. The group broke up, two riding back on the wagon trail, three going at a lope down the creek.

While they followed the trail of Kentucky and two small-hoofed ponies, Biff Sanderson told Boone about his discovery of placer gold deposits on the upper South Platte and that he had registered his claims in the name of their partnership: Sanderson & Boone.

"Soon's we kin git some sizeable sluicin' machinery out there, Jere," he predicted enthusiastically, "we'll wash a million dollars worth o' gold outa them hills. A town's sprung up that's been named Denver City, and's got more'n 5,000 hustlin' people in it already. Our trappin' an' buffalo-huntin' days is long gone an' past, Jere, an' don't be lookin' so glum-faced 'bout it, younker."

Boone gave Sanderson reason to believe he was gloomy to the point of lacking interest in the gold discovery story, but his reasons were such that he could not discuss them while Harold Manning rode within earshot. The fate of Alice Markley, the black shadow of impending catastrophe for the emigrant train, the probability that they would all be massacred, including himself and Sanderson, was enough to dampen his ardor for any distant prospects of golden wealth. Also, he was in love and dreaded the time when he would have to expose that fact to the skeptical old hardshell who had been his tutor and senior partner during most of his years on the plains.

They crossed the North Platte an hour before sundown and followed the three sets of horse tracks along a treeless creek valley which wound about crookedly among low sandhills off toward the northwest. On the approach to each bend in the narrow valley between the enclosing, wind-hewn bluffs, either Boone or Sanderson would ride cautiously ahead and spy out the terrain ahead.

As night drew on, the strain on the nerves of both Jere Boone and Harold Manning began to display itself in differing ways, characteristic of the two men. Boone spoke seldom, but set the pace of their advance at a more reckless speed. Manning, just as anxious to get on more rapidly, nevertheless began to complain bitterly from time to time. Once he directly accused Boone of delaying their finding Alice by needlessly losing time earlier in the day. Boone, seeing that the exhausted youth was holding to his saddle only through will power he had not credited to him, restrained his own edgy temper.

Just as the sun was setting they climbed over the foot of a sandhill and saw a herd of countless thousands of buffalo packed along the course of the nearly dry creek, draining the available holes of water and preparing to bed down for the night. The bulky, shaggy animals not only filled the narrow creek valley, but spread out upon the prairie eastward as far as the impatient onlookers could see.

Biff Sanderson shook his head and declared, "There ain't nothin' we kin do but circle 'em and hit the crick again 'way up 'bove the critters. We dassent run a risk 'o stampedin' 'em. They might git goin' right smack over where the gal an' them that's with her is makin' camp for the night."

"You really believe we'll find them camping somewhere up this creek?" Manning asked Sanderson with a note of hope in his dragging, tired voice.

"'C'ose we will," Sanderson told him. "They's no other place they could be, 'less'n they'd be campin' 'way out on the prairie where they'd have no water."

The three tired ponies were turned out across the higher ground to the west in a wide circle leeward of the herd, so the light evening breeze from the east would not carry the alarming scent of man to the easily frightened herd.

Dusk was settling rapidly along the little creek when the horsemen came back to the slender watercourse far above the vast herd. In a few minutes Boone found the horse tracks they had abandoned down the creek, but within a half mile it was so dark that they could be seen no longer from the saddle. Sanderson and Boone agreed that it made no difference, as they could be certain of finding those they sought if they continued up the creek course.

They continued, going more slowly. Manning was sagging more and more in his saddle. Boone feared the plucky youth would collapse and add another problem.

Two hours after darkness had overtaken them, a gleam of light flickered ahead as they rounded a bend in the lessening bluffs enclosing the narrowed lowland along the creek. They turned back a little way until the light was obscured, and Boone and his partner sprang from their saddles. As Manning tried to lift one leg over the rump of his pony, he fell to the ground, mumbling incoherently.

They poured water from their canteens on the exhausted young man's face and head, then let him drink copiously. When he tried to stand, his legs would not come together. Boone and Sanderson gave him the bridle reins to hold and left him sitting disconsolately, gloomily silent, on the ground while they crept away into the darkness.

When the two creeping figures approached the campfire of buffalo chips they saw three people. Two were men whom neither Boone nor Sanderson could recognize. Sight of the third person made Jere Boone's blood race wildly. Alice Markley sat upon a blanket near the fire.

While Boone watched her and her captors, conferring in whispers with Sanderson, the man who crouched before the fire lifted a stick across to the girl. A piece of broiled meat dangled from the end of the stick. Alice shook her head. The man snatched the piece of meat and began greedily eating it. The other man, just beyond the fire, was cutting meat from what seemed to be antelope carcass.

"You stick here until I git 'round t'other side o' them," Biff Sanderson told Boone. "Their hosses is staked out over there."

Sanderson slithered away across the grass to the left. After about two minutes of tensed waiting, Boone heard the alarmed snort of a horse. Both men at the fire jumped to their feet, their faces turned away from Boone as they tried to see the cause of the horse's fear. They began immediately backing away from the firelight, but a voice beyond them halted their cautious maneuver.

"Stop where you are, or ketch some lead!" Biff Sanderson snapped out. "We got you plumb, totally surrounded!"

Boone saw the man on the side of the fire next to him slowly, carefully lifting a hip gun from that shadowed side that was turned toward him and away from Biff.

"Drop that gun and lift hands, feller!" he called.

Both men beside the fire looked around in Boone's direction. Both lifted hands obediently. Alice Markley sat as if petrified until she heard Boone's voice, then her hands flew to her throat and she tried vainly to see him.

"Jere Boone!" she cried.

The name had barely escaped her lips when the man who stood with his back to Boone began a quick dash away into the darkness, but Boone's rifle moved to followed the leaping figure for a half second, then splashed a tongue of flame across the darkness.

Alice Markley screamed and crawled away from the firelight. The other man beside the fire wavered for a moment as if he thought of following his friend, then he saw the latter stumble, sprawl on his face and lie motionless. He stood very still then, hands over his head, until Biff Sanderson ran up behind him and snatched his holstered hip gun, which he poked against the fellow's back.

"Walk on over there to your pardner!" Sanderson ordered. "Keep a wary eye peeled on 'em both, Jere, until I make sure o' the other skunk!"

He made his prisoner stand aside with his back turned to him while he bent to get the prostrate man's gun, then told Boone to come in.

Amendment Beaten But Is Approved

NAHUNTA, Ga., Nov. 11.—(AP) Returns showed today Brantley countians opposed a local constitutional amendment approved by the state in this week's general election.

The amendment, proposing a change in the country's school system, was defeated in Brantley county by a vote of 182 to 51. The amendment was approved, however, on the basis of state-wide returns.

A section of the amendment provides that a county election must be held before the act becomes mandatory, and Ordinary John E. Lee has set December 7 as the date for the second vote.

FARLEY, HAMILTON LAUD GALLUP POLL

Survey Showed Tuesday's Results With Amazing Accuracy.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Democratic party chairman, James A. Farley, and Republican chairman, John D. M. Hamilton, were on the same side of the record today as both leaders paid their respects to the accuracy and impartiality of the Gallup poll, which forecast Tuesday's elections with striking accuracy for The Constitution and 73 other American newspapers.

Farley, who made a bull's-eye prediction of the 1936 election himself, said the Gallup surveys had been "extremely accurate" and found this fact an evidence of their scientific method and impartiality.

"My personal opinion is that, in view of the record that has been made, the public generally who follow polls have great confidence in the accuracy of the Gallup poll," Farley said.

The statement was made in reply to a query from the Washington Post.

Republican Chairman Hamilton told the Post:

"In forecasting this year's congressional elections, Dr. Gallup not only accurately reported the national trend made apparent to all in Tuesday's elections, but he came strikingly close to putting his finger exactly on the number of house seats which Republicans would capture.

"Most amazing, however, was the hair-line accuracy of his forecast on the New York governorship race. Dr. Gallup's fine record of achievement in this largely unexplored field merits the continued confidence of the country."

Dr. Gallup's American Institute of Public Opinion reported in The Constitution that the Republicans were likely to gain 75 additional seats in the house and that Governor Herbert H. Lehman was leading Thomas E. Dewey with 50.2 per cent of the vote. The Republicans picked up 81 seats, while Lehman's vote turned out to be 50.7 per cent.

NAZIS WOULD 'GAG' JEWS OF WORLD

Reprisals for Criticism Threatened as New Persecutions Are Launched.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Germany's sudden nation-wide outburst of anti-Semitism developed tonight into a series of secret police raids upon Jews of the upper classes amid reports that the ghetto of the middle ages was to be re-established in the modern Nazi Reich.

Official Germany pushed ahead its anti-Semitic program with a warning to Jews abroad, especially in the United States, that their "behavior" would affect future treatment of Jews in Germany.

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, writing for tomorrow's Voelkischer Beobachter an article intended to justify the anti-Jewish actions, expressed annoyance at what he termed "misrepresentations and distortions" of happenings here, especially in the reports of "the Jewish press of North America."

"The anti-German outside world will do well to leave solution of the Jewish problem to Germans. If the outside world wants the Jews, it can have them."

An undetermined number were arrested in tonight's secret police raids among the upper Jewish classes. Jews estimated between 700 and 1,000 had been taken into custody in Berlin since yesterday, while further arrests in Munich brought the total there to an estimated 1,400. Several thousand more were reported in custody in various other parts of Germany.

A trainload of approximately 800 Jewish prisoners left Vienna tonight for an undisclosed destination.

Official information was lacking but it was understood they were bing transported to a German concentration camp, possibly Dachau or Buchcenwalde.

The doom of Jewish business throughout Germany appeared tonight to be one result of yesterday's wholesale destruction. Today Jewish stores one after another passed into non-Jewish, or "Aryan" hands in one form or another.

Goebbels announced the expected new anti-Semitic laws would be issued shortly, probably signalling victory in Nazidom's five-year campaign against the Jews.

AMERICAN CORN PRINCIPAL SUPPLY

Argentine Crop Less Than Half of Usual.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Big jumps of corn values are being associated at present with authoritative assertions that temporarily the United States is the world's principal source of supply.

Friends of higher prices contend that this situation will exist for the next six months or more. The chief reason assigned is that the 1938 Argentine corn crop has amounted to less than half the usual output, and that Argentina's exportable surplus is now almost exhausted.

Current trade reports here indicate that until a new Argentine crop becomes ready, world import requirements can only be obtained from this country, except relatively small quantities, from the Danube basin and South Africa. Meanwhile, the United States corn surplus is apparently being controlled to a remarkable extent by government loans slowing the crop's movement into consumer use.

Compared to a week ago, Chicago corn quotations this morning were 2 1-4 to 2 5-8 cents a bushel higher; wheat 3-8 to 3-4 of a cent down; oats 3-8 to 1-2 advanced; Rye 3-8 to 3-4 up, and provisions showing 5 to 20 cents bulge.

Bank Clearings

Cut down by the election day holiday, the volume of bank clearings for the current period dropped sharply from that of the week preceding and was also considerably less than the aggregate for the corresponding week last year, which did not include election day.

Total clearings for the five-day week ended Wednesday, November 9, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., amounted to $4,414,529,000, a decline of 18.6 per cent from the $5,422,722,000 for the corresponding full week a year ago.

New York clearances fell to $2,635,719,000, as compared with $3,388,647,000 for the same 1937 week, giving a decrease of 22.2 per cent. Outside of New York, the turnover was $1,778,810,000, or 12.5 per cent less than the $2,034,075,000 for the like period a year ago.

Louisville, Atlanta and Boston showed advances from a year ago of 18.1, 9.0 and 5.2 per cent, respectively. The more important declines at other outside centers included Buffalo, 27.2 per cent; Pittsburgh, 26.2 per cent; Detroit, 25.7 per cent; Portland, 23.9 per cent; Minneapolis, 29.9 per cent, and Chicago, 18.6 per cent.

FURTHER RECOVERY SEEN FOR BUSINESS

New York Traders and Capital Economists Optimistic About Future.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Wall Street and Washington economists, with few exceptions, are looking for continuing business recovery, at least into the spring, with prospects for further gains regarded as "good."

While there is general reluctance to try to look farther ahead than six months, some think the outlook for an upward cycle lasting "a couple of years" or more are very hopeful.

A canvass of candid, off-the-record opinion among expert business analysts, both in the federal administration, and in business and financial offices of Wall Street, found a widespread expectation that the gaining momentum in heavy goods would carry on in the main, at least for several months, barring unforeseen upsets.

One of the government's veteran economists said:

"We have the best basis for stable recovery now that we have had since perhaps 1926. We have a reasonably balanced price structure. There is an absence of speculation which might throw things out of balance."

Washington sources interested chiefly in relief problems estimated that of some 3,000,000 workers (exclusive of agricultural) who lost their jobs in the slump starting in the spring of 1937, roughly a third have been re-employed.

These analysts regarded it as something more than a good guess that a million more will be back on payrolls by next spring, with a good prospect that employment should get back to 1937 peak levels some time in 1939.

Some of the prognosticators say one subject on which they are keeping their fingers crossed is Europe, that renewed war threats would be disturbing, but since the Munich pact, the tendency has been to regard that danger as at least deferred well beyond the nearer future.

The new session of congress is awaited with much interest and conjecture, as to its bearing upon the recovery problem. Taxation, railway rehabilitation, and national defense are subjects in which Wall Street is particularly interested.

Some Wall Street leaders have enthusiastically predicted a shift in administration policy involving a new plan to stimulate heavy industry, in which railway aid and national defense expenditures would play a prominent part, and a trend toward pay-as-you-go in government financing, including revision of the tax base and curtailment of relief spending.

Wall Street, of course, greeted the Republican gains in congress in Tuesday's elections with enthusiasm, on the theory they would tend to moderate the administration's drive for reform and thus encourage business. In the main, however, the analyses of the business outlook were based on pre-election studies.

TINPLATE PRICES CUT BY CARNEGIE

Steel Firm Reduces Product $7 Per Ton.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation reduced coke tinplate prices $7 a ton today and announced that changes in other tin mill products "will follow at some later date."

Steel circles viewed the tinplate reduction as a levelling off of prices in conformity with earlier decreases in sheet steel and rail prices.

Observers predicted the reduction would quicken competition between the United States Steel subsidiary and certain big independents which produce a large volume of tinplate.

The change was also regarded as a step to stimulate tinplate production, which had dropped recently to 30 per cent of capacity.

Inland Steel Company was the first to meet the Carnegie-Illinois reduction, but other independents were expected to fall in line.

TARZAN AND THE ELEPHANT MEN No. 24

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan advanced fearlessly in the face of the growling hyenas. The beasts retreated, slinking away into the forest. And now the ape-man turned to Tantor the elephant, whose skin hung loosely, evidencing that he had been many days without food and water.

Almost as old as Tarzan was the friendship of Tarzan and Tantor. He had never seen this elephant before, but to Tarzan he was Tantor. The name and the friendship belonged to all elephants. So Tarzan spoke softly in the language he used with jungle beasts.

Perhaps Tantor did not understand the words—who may know? But something, the tone perhaps, conveyed the idea that here was a friend. That elephant needed something more than kind words, however, and Tarzan set about providing a feast of bamboo shoots.

Then he began the herculean task of excavating a ramp up which Tantor might walk to freedom. To Tarzan, this was a simple act of friendship, but it was to have startling consequence in the dangerous days that lay ahead for the mighty Lord of the Jungle.

'THREE SISTERS' COME TO ATLANTA

Women's Clothing Store Will Open at Whitehall, Alabama Today.

Atlanta's newest woman's clothing store, Three Sisters, will open this morning at one of the busiest spots downtown, the corner of Whitehall and Alabama street.

While employes yesterday filled the interior of the remodeled building with modern showcases and shelves with up-to-date stock, workmen added finishing touches to the exterior. Every accessory will be entirely new.

The store will be air conditioned throughout, with control extending even into the lobby.

The lobby, window display space and interior is lighted indirectly, augmenting the soft color shades of the furnishings, highlighted in bronze and aspin wood imported from South America. Most of the wall space is tinted canary yellow, with the floor an inlaid green terrazo.

A shoe shop, coat and dress shop, lingeries shop and a blouse shop are included in the ground floor's arrangement. On the second floor, containing 30 fitting rooms, women's dresses, sports wear, coats and millinery are featured.

Now a decade old, the Three Sisters enterprises originated in New York city. The Three Sisters motif, a circlebearing profiles of three girls, is found in many places in the Atlanta store, on the mirrow panels of the show windows, the elevator doors and elsewhere as decorations.

Slipping or Irritating

Don't be embarrassed by loose false teeth slipping, dropping or wabbling when you eat, talk or laugh. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This pleasant powder gives a remarkable sense of added comfort and security by holding plates more firmly. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. It's alkaline (non-acid). TRAIN IS WRECKED BY 1,000-POUND BULL

LAPORTE, Ind., Nov. 11.—(AP) The proverbial "bull in a china shop" was outdone today by a bull on a railroad track.

A Pennsylvania railroad locomotive was derailed and 15 freight cars were wrecked when the locomotive struck a 1,500-pound bull near LaCrosse.

NURSES TURN BACK CLOCK 20 YEARS

Opening Convention Session Here Is Devoted to Red Cross.

Delegates to the convention of the Georgia State Nurses' Association at the Biltmore hotel turned back the clock 20 years yesterday when many of them were on duty with the Red Cross in France at the time of the signing of the Armistice.

Buglers from the American Legion Post No. 1 drum and bugle corps sounded reveille and then the army mess call to begin the Red Cross breakfast at 7 o'clock and start the day.

The opening convention session, at 8:30 o'clock, also was devoted to the Red Cross and featured talks by the president, Shirley Hamrick, state delegate to the 1938 American Red Cross convention, and by Annabelle Petersen, whose topic was "Perpetuate Your Red Cross."

Other speakers were Dr. Frank Boland, chairman of the Atlanta chapter of the American Red Cross; E. Alma Brown, state committee chairman, and Daisy Blackwell, local arrangements committee chairman.

Closing business session of the convention starts at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Adjournment will follow selection of the 1939 meeting place, report of the resolutions committee and installation of new officers.

A dinner at the Biltmore hotel with Lucy Harris, director of nurses at the Georgia Baptist hospital, presiding, was the last event on yesterday's program. Speakers heard during the afternoon included Aurelia Potts, director of nursing education at Peabody College, Nashville, and Ralph L. Ramsey, executive secretary of the Georgia Education Association.

4,675-MILE RACE FOR LIFE CHARTED

Peruvian Millionaire Charters Relay of Planes for Dash to Mayo's.

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 11.—(UP)—A millionaire Peruvian miner tomorrow will start a 4,675-mile race against death to Rochester, Minn., for an operation which may save his life.

The miner, Manuel Mujica Carassa, is critically ill of gall stones and today his private American physician, Dr. Eugene McCormack, decided that an emergency operation is necessary.

Arrangements were made whereby, for the first time in South American history, an individual has chartered airplanes in relay for an urgent trip to the United States. Every hour of the trip will cost Millionaire Carassa $200. The flight is expected to take 52 hours and therefore will cost $10,400.

The race will start at 5:30 a. m., at Lima's Tambo airport. A Panagra DC3 will carry Carassa to Cristolbal, in the Canal Zone. There a Pan-American Clipper plane will be waiting to take Carassa to Miami, Fla. The next relay will be via Eastern Air Lines overnight to Chicago, with a final spurt by way of Northwestern Air Lines directely to Rochester, where the race will end about 9:30 a. m. Monday.

Carassa will be taken immediately to the Mayo Clinic.

Accompanying him on the trip will be Dr. McCormack, Mrs. Carassa, and Carassa's two sons, Manuel and Miguel.

Atlanta is on the route of the Eastern Air Lines' leg of the race against death. It was presumed here last night that the plane carrying the Peruvian millionaire will pause at Candler field for refueling en route from Miami to Chicago.

German Shell Is Dedicated As Peace Symbol

WINTER PARK, Fla., Nov. 11. (AP)—An instrument of war—a German shell—was dedicated as a symbol of peace on Rollins College campus today.

"This engine of destruction, torture and death symbolizes the prostitution of the inventor, the avarice of the manufacturer, the blood-guilt of the statesman, the savagery of the soldier, the perverted patriotism of the citizen, the debasement of the human race. That it can be employed as an instrument in defense of liberty, justice and right in no wise invalidates the truth of the words here graven."

Dr. William Stakely Cox, president of Cox College, College Park, and well known in educational circles, died last night at his home on the campus, following a brief illness. He was 77.

There they became large plantation owners and holders of great numbers of slaves. Ryan Cox was a descendant of one of the 12 Cox brothers who came to Pennsylvania from England in the early colonial period.

Cox College, one of the oldest in the south, was founded at LaGrange in 1843 as the LaGrange Female Seminary. It was chartered under several successive names, and in 1854 was incorporated as Southern Female College.

In 1857, Dr. Cox's father, I. F. Cox, became its president, and in 1887, after his graduation from Cornell, Dr. Cox became business manager. In 1895, when it was decided to move the institution to College Park, Dr. Cox drew the plans for the building and supervised construction.

His father died in 1887, and Dr. Cox's brother, Dr. Charles C. Cox, became president. Dr. Cox succeeded to the presidency upon the death of his brother. By then it had become known as Cox College.
